MAKING A NAME FOR THEMSELVES.

According to one man's reasoning, a woman has the easiest time of it because she can always annex some other fellow's name, whereas a man has to make a name for himself.

REX LORRAINE

are making a good name for themselves because of their downright goodness and fine flavour. They are in the "good books" of every woman who has tried them, because they need no cooking and are so nourishing and tasty.

REX LORRAINE SAUSAGES are smoked to perfection by the expert Rex Chefs, so as to retain all the savoury flavours. A rich gravy is packed in the tins.

A man came up, wheeling a motor cycle.

"There's been an—an accident. My—my friend is hurt," stammered Brettell.

"I heard someone cry out. How did it happen?"

"He's—there; go—and look at him," Brettel pointed to the tree, and the man went to Eldwood.

Then the lights of a swiftly approaching car appeared over the crest of the hill, the hooter sounded a loud warning, and as Brettell was unable to get out of the way, the car pulled up and someone asked what was the matter.

Brettell made no reply, but the man who was bending over Eldwood straightened up instantly. "Is that you, Mr. Carton? There's been an accident, and one of the men in the car I was following has been killed."

Brettell heard this with fresh dismay, and jumped out and ran to the big tree. "You don't mean that he's dead," he cried. "My God, I shall never forgive myself."

He and Carton reached the spot at the same moment.

"So it's Eldwood, is it?" asked Carton. "How did you manage it?"

"Is that really you, Mr. Carton? This is terrible, terrible!" cried Brettell in great agitation. "We had trouble with the engine on the way down, and—and Eldwood got out each time to start it, and this last time I—I forgot and—and left the clutch—and—the car pinned him against the tree here. Oh, I shall never get that cry of his out of my ears!"

"You're sure he's dead," Carton asked the man who had come up first.

"Certain. Dead as a door-nail, sir. His chest's crushed to a jelly."

"Well, you'd better stop here and see to things. A word with you," he said to Brettell, who was shaking like an aspen leaf. "You'd better pull yourself together. My being here will tell you that the game's up. I had you followed from London, and now I've had a wire from the woman you put in charge of Muriel, telling me she's at a house in Elstree called the Vinery. You say this was an accident——"

"So it was," interjected Brettell with hoarse vehemence.

"Call it what you like; but you'd better have a doctor to see him as soon as possible, and take him to that house and have a straight tale to tell about what you were both doing here in Elstree. As for the future, keep out of my way if you don't want me to explain all that that accident means to you and your mother. It might cause others to take a different view of it."

"If you mean to insinuate——" began Brettell, blustering, but Carton did not stop to listen.

With a feeling of profound relief at Eldwood's death, he went back to his car and drove away to fetch Muriel.

CHAPTER XXX.
THE END.

It would have been difficult to find a happier couple in all London than Carton and Muriel the next morning as they sat at breakfast, and she told him all that had occurred at Elstree.

She was quite able to laugh at her experiences. "I wasn't really frightened at any moment, thanks to you, father," she declared, after she had described how she had been induced to leave the car in the City, her attempt to bribe Gregg, the interview with Brettell, and how she had bolted herself into the room.

"Why thank me for your own pluck child?"

"First, because of all that has happened since I left Curzon-square. It's made a different creature of me altogether, put such hope and energy into me then; because I knew you wouldn't have your daughter be a coward; and, lastly, because I was certain that you would find some way to prevent them doing any real mischief. You see, formerly I didn't care much what happened, while now—well, you know what I mean. Everything seemed to urge me to fight. I was furiously angry—angry enough to have done anything, however desperate, and I believe that if I'd had a weapon of any sort when that man tried to drag me away I could have killed him. And yet I nearly laughed out loud when I'd struck him and saw his surprise and fright."

"I hope you hit him as hard as you could," said Carton, smiling.

"I did, with all my might, and he slunk away so that I hadn't the least difficulty in pushing him out of the room. But I made a mistake afterwards."

"How?"

"In not believing that Gregg meant to help me. She came first about an hour after he'd gone, and said there was no one else in the house, and that she would let me go. I didn't believe her. I thought it was just a trap, and that he had sent her up. If I'd known she was really in earnest, I should have been back with you hours earlier. She came again and again, always with the same tale, and at length it occurred to me to tell her to send you a telegram. She agreed at once, so I wrote it out and pushed it under the door; but I was still suspicious. I'm mad when I think of it. The house was positively empty while she was away, and I could just have walked out."

"I received the telegram all right, and you may bet I wasn't long in setting off to find you. It arrived soon after Brettell and his companion had been here trying to make me pay a ransom," replied Carton. "I kept them here a bit, as I needed a little time to complete some arrangements I had made to have them shadowed. One of my men was on their heels from the instant they left. Then went from her to Elstree, but must have delayed on the road, for I caught them up and passed them about a mile from the house. I guess you were getting anxious by the time I arrived."

"I think I was, although I was still convinced you would find me, even if Gregg had not sent the telegram. I wouldn't let myself be afraid, but it would be impossible to tell you the relief with which I heard your voice calling me. I shall never forget that moment. Who is the man John Eldwood?"

"A scoundrel who planned the whole thing with the Ledfields; but he won't trouble you or any of us any more. They meant to get money out of me, and, of course, I should have paid anything they asked, if I hadn't known I could checkmate them. And now the question is—how shall we punish them?"

Muriel smiled and shook her head. "I suppose I ought to feel terribly revengeful, but somehow I don't. I'm safe with you again, and I don't care what becomes of them. I'm just too happy to be angry any longer."

"I think I'm glad to hear you say that, child; but if we don't want to punish them we ought to reward that woman Gregg. What do you say?"

"I offered her a thousand pounds to let me go, but she wouldn't do it at the time, so she doesn't deserve anything like that. Shall we give her a hundred? Do you think I'm worth that to you?" she asked laughingly.

"You shall give her just what you please, child, and we'd have made it the thousand if she hadn't behaved so scandalously to you before."

"Don't forget that she helped me then. If she hadn't got drunk I should not have escaped when I did. And there's someone else we mustn't forget—my dear old nurse, Harriet Johnson."

"What about taking her to Canada with us?" suggested Carton.

"Would you mind?"

He laughed. "I guess there's a corner in the old house for anyone you want. Go and see her to-day, and find out if she'd like to go."

"I'm sure of it, but——" she paused and looked doubtfully at him.

"Well? What's the trouble?"

"Do you mean I could venture to go alone?"

"You'll have no more trouble on that score, I promise you. That's all over. You'll be as safe as if you had a bodyguard of troops with you."

At that moment a servant entered with two telegrams, one for each of them, and Carton let Muriel get hers open first. "From Frank," she cried, her eyes dancing. "Listen! 'Hurrying hotfoot to Lodestone.' Oh, isn't that perfectly lovely!" and she jumped up and ran to look over his shoulder as he read his, and hugged and kissed him. "Wires received. Arrive London to-morrow night or following morning."

She danced excitedly about the room, waving the telegrams. "But what a long time to have to wait," she cried presently. "Whatever shall I find to do to get through the time?"

"There's plenty to do, sweetheart. He'll be back in time for us to catch the steamer the day after to-morrow, and you'll have to be ready. So, if you're going to take your old nurse with you, the sooner you see her the better."

"I'll be off now. Oh dear, was there ever such a happy girl in all the world?" and hugging him again, she ran off. He went downstairs with her, and as soon as he'd seen her into a taxi, he secured the passages in the steamer and went back to their rooms.

He had purposely not told her about Eldwood's death, nor allowed her to see anything of the intense relief it had caused him. It meant so much to him and to the wife he loved so devotedly. His secret was now safe for ever, and he was inexpressibly glad he had not sent the letter to his wife. He could spare her all the pain and suffering which a revelation of the truth would inevitably have caused. The burden of care he had borne for so many years was rolled from his shoulders for ever, and he would not have been human if he had not rejoiced at it exceedingly.

It would now be possible to tell Frank no more than that his father was dead, and leave him to believe what his mother believed, that Eldwood had died many years before, when the report of his death had first reached them.

He was revelling in the new sense of relief, when Sir James arrived in a condition of greater nervous excitement than usual, and burst at once into the reason for his visit, stammering and stuttering over it to such an extent that Carton had some difficulty in understanding at first that he had come to ask help to leave the country.

"Why all this flurry, James?" You know that Eldwood is dead, don't you?"

"That's—just it, Gordon. I—I'm afraid. Do you know—how it happened?"

"Yes, I was on the spot soon after the accident occurred."

Sir James paused to glance nervously around, and then drew out a little leather case. "No one can hear us, can they?" he asked in a whisper, drawing his chair close to Carton. "This is Harold's," he continued in the same tone. "He carried his stamps in it and odds and ends of papers. He left it in my room this morning, and I found that in it. Read it," and he gave Carton a slip of newspaper, watching him shrinkingly as he read it.

It was the cutting which Lady Ledfield had given to Brettell in the house at Elstree, and the paragraph reported a fatal motor accident identical in almost every detail with that by which Eldwood had been killed.

"You say you found this in Brettell's case?" he asked, his face set and stern as he realised the full significance of the discovery.

Sir James nodded. "That's not all. There's that writing—across the corner. The address of the house at Elstree. It's my wife's writing," he said, sinking his voice even lower and turning deathly pale as he peered into Carton's eyes. What—what do you make of it?"

"The same as you do, judging by your looks. Murder, and that they were both concerned in it. Her suggestion and his act."

Sir James pressed his hand to his head, and sat hunched together in his chair, trembling, utterly dejected and panic-stricken.

(To be concluded.)

OUR NEW SERIAL.

The new serial story which commences in next Thursday's "Herald" is from the pen of the well-known novelist, Mr. Morice Gerard, and though a work of fascinating fiction is by no means without historical interest. Under the title "The Adventures of Marmaduke Clegg," the author tells a story of the year 1688, dealing with the events that led to the fall of the House of Stuart, and placed William of Orange on the Throne of England. The hero, who is made to tell his own narrative, is a debonair soldier of fortune, a captain of the Guards of the Prince of Nassau. He returns to England in the May of 1688, and straightway becomes involved in a web of adventure, intrigue, and chivalrous enterprise that endures until the final chapter. A midnight rencontre with a charming woman, and a fight that results in our hero being kidnapped in mistake for Lord Shrewsbury, whom he strikingly resembles, are early incidents in the story. Captain Clegg's regard for the lady prevents him from disclosing his real identity till in the presence of King James himself, and by that time Shrewsbury is on his way to join William of Orange. Plot and counter-plot follow, with duels, skirmishes, abductions, and rescues, till finally the Stuart forces are put to confusion, and our hero wins the reward of his lady's hand. The story never halts from first to last, and personages well known in history are conjured up to speak their lines before the reader, including Lord Churchill (later Duke of Marlborough) and the infamous Judge Jeffreys, whose untimely end is referred to in the final chapter. As a tale of adventure, relieved by a charming love story, this work is up to Mr. Gerard's best standard.

THE SECOND COMING.

The fifth annual convention dealing with the subject of the second advent of Christ was held in St. Stephen's Church, Newtown, yesterday, the chairman being Canon Bellingham, M.A. A service of Holy Communion in the morning was followed by three sessions, all of which were largely attended. The speakers at the first session were the Rev. S. M. Johnstone, M.A., who took as his subject, "The manner and the meaning of the Lord's return," and the Rev. H. G. J. Howe, who spoke on the Lord's coming in relation to the Jew. Those who spoke at the second session were the Rev. H. S. Begbie, who took as his subject "Gentiles in History and in Prophecy," and the Rev. S. E. Langford Smith, who dealt with current events, especially in connection with the war. The concluding session was occupied by the Rev. H. S. Begbie in answering questions affecting prophecy, and in dealing with the calling, the hope, and the obligation of the Church.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Entries for the half-dozen items on the card for the Moorefield July meeting close at 4 p.m. to-day with the secretary, Mr. H. R. Evans. The prize-money totals 60 sovs, equally distributed.

The heavy rainfall on Sunday night and Monday morning was responsible for the postponement of the second day's racing at the Rosehill Prince of Wales' Birthday meeting until Thursday next.

During the autumn season, Sydney was largely visited by Indian sportsmen, and several officials of the two premier Indian racing institutions, but mostly all have returned. Messrs. G. H. Hillbred and C. N. Doustiol, stewards of the Calcutta Turf Club, returned last week, and this week Messrs. Harvey Roulston (stipendiary steward of the Calcutta Turf Club) and Percy Lamb (the official judge) leave and will be accompanied by Mr. John Reynolds, the secretary and manager of the Bombay Turf Club.

Mr. J. E. Henrys, the premier handicapper of New Zealand, is paying his customary winter visit to Australia, and was present at Rosehill on Saturday.

The Gosford Racing Club has provided 260 sovs prize-money for the half-dozen events on the card for its fixture of the 3rd prox., and entries will be received by the secretary, Mr. H. R. Evans, up to 4 p.m. to-day.

The first of the recent visitors from New Zealand to show winning form is the two-year-old gelding Immortel, by Martian (imp.) from Everlasting, by Padlock (imp.) from Azalea (imp.), who secured the Maiden Juvenile Stakes at Rosehill on Saturday. Immortel, who was bred by Mr. J. F. Buchanan, was purchased as a yearling for 200 guineas by Mr. G. D. Greenwood, and is trained by the veteran Dominion mentor, R. J. Mason, at Randwick. His success was not anticipated by the patrons of the ring, but he received fair support on the totalisator, in which his number carried 84 investors, and he returned a dividend of £6 4s 6d, while 25 to 1 could be had about him from the bookmakers.

The Downshire gelding Gavot proved fractious when asked to join his field in the Flying Welter at Rosehill on Saturday, and when the barrier was released he dwelt, losing a deal of ground, which he could not make up in race, and acted as whipper in all the way.

Penalties incurred in connection with Thursday's racing at Rosehill are Coominya (Second Hurdle Race), 10lb; Tiberius (Prince of Wales Stakes), La Penna (Birthday Handicap), and Speedfast (Carlingford Mile), 7lb each.

The three-year-old gelding Tonio, by Autonio (imp.) from Wedding Present (imp.), by Trenton, who opened his winning account in the Maiden Stakes at Rosehill on Saturday, is full-brother to the well-performed Wedding Day, and is in the same ownership. Antonio who was bred by Mr. R. C. Allen, cost 135 gns. as a yearling.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that after running in the Hurdle Race at Morphettville yesterday, Royal Precedent was leased by Mr. J. Timms, and will carry that sportman's colours in the Melbourne National. He leaves on Wednesday for the Victorian capital, with Polygamist, Maldon King, Ivernia, Becol, and Edinol.

SUGGESTED A.J.C. RULES.

The committee of the Australian Jockey Club has drafted a series of suggested rules and regulations to be submitted to the members of the club at the annual meeting. These have been rendered necessary by the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1916, with the scheme for the protection of owners and trainers in cases of claims arising out of accidents to their employees. The suggested rules and regulations provide for the establishment of an accident fund, out of which compensation may be made, subject to certain conditions, to owners, trainers, jockeys, apprentices, or stable hands, or other persons for loss or damage incurred by accident arising out of and in the course of their business or employment. In the establishment of this fund, it is proposed that the amount now standing to the credit of the distressed jockeys' fund be transferred to the credit of the accident fund, into which also shall be paid all fees paid to the club for jockeys' fees and permits to ride; all fees paid for a like purpose to any association of clubs holding registered meetings approved of by the committee; all fees paid for a like purpose to the Newcastle and Broken Hill Registration Boards; all fees paid as contributions to the accident fund by or on behalf of any owner or trainer; and all fines imposed at any race meeting at which the A.J.C. rules are in force. The accident fund shall not be deemed a trust fund, but shall be the absolute property of the A.J.C., and dealt with as the committee shall from time to time determine, and it shall not be deemed an insurance fund for horse owners and others, the object being to create and maintain a fund out of which persons who may have incurred any loss, damage, or liability by reason of any accident may, in the discretion of the committee, be compensated in such a manner and on such terms as the committee may think fit. The committee may appoint three or more of its members as a sub-committee for the purpose of dealing with applications for compensation, and their decisions shall be reported to the committee for confirmation or otherwise.

The suggested additions to the rules of racing provide that every jockey shall pay a fee of £1 for his license, and every apprentice 10/ when granted permission to ride in races, such fees to be credited to the accident fund; to which also shall be credited all fines imposed at any registered meeting. No owner, trainer, jockey, apprentice, or stable hand, or other person shall have any claim or right to any portion of the accident fund, and the committee may in its absolute discretion either wholly or in part indemnify the applicant, or refuse to pay any money whatever for that purpose. Before any horse shall be weighed-out for any race to be run at any registered meeting there shall be paid a fee of £1, or such other amount as may be fixed from time to time by the committee to the secretary of the A.J.C., that fee to cover that and any other race meetings during the current racing year. On the receipt of such fee, the name of such horse shall be continually notified during the current year in the "Racing Calendar" in the list of horses for which the "accident fund" fee has been paid, and no horse shall be permitted to weigh out for any race at any registered meeting unless its name appears in the "Racing Calendar," any contravention of this rule rendering the owner or trainer liable to a fine of not less than £1, and not more than £5; while the official through whose neglect a horse was weighed out is liable to a fine of not less than £5. Every trainer, on being licensed, shall pay his contribution to the accident fund as under:—Licensed to train at Randwick Racecourse, £3; on other courses than Randwick, and within a radius of 40 miles from the Sydney G.P.O., £2; licensed to train by the Newcastle Registration Board, £2; each trainer licensed to train by the governing body of any association of clubs holding registered meetings, £1; and each trainer licensed by the Broken Hill Registration Board, £1 per annum. The suggested rules and regulations also provide that the moneys of the accident fund shall not be available for compensation for accidents occurring outside the State of New South Wales; and any person who, in the opinion of the committee, makes a wilfully false statement in support of any application for compensation out of this accident fund, either for himself or on behalf of an employee or any other person, shall be deemed guilty of improper practices on the turf, and may be disqualified for any period the committee may think fit, or during its pleasure, or may be fined a sum not exceeding £100.

KENSINGTON RACING CLUB.

Taking a risk against the weather yesterday the Kensington Racing Club decided to go on with its pony and galloway meeting, and a record attendance passed through the turnstiles. DAIRY CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the co-operative dairy factory managers and secretaries, which opens to-day, will have no more important question to consider than the future provision of shipping accommodation. There will be other questions discussed that are of considerable moment to the dairying industry, but this matter quite overshadows all else. On the whole, since the beginning of the war, the industry has not fared badly. What setbacks and losses it met were of small account to what might have been expected with the world torn by an international conflict of appalling magnitude. It will be remembered that at the conference of those interested in the industry held shortly after the outbreak of war there were gloomy forebodings and anticipations. This was only natural. We were facing a gigantic crisis, and none knew what would be the next development. We do not know now for that matter, but we have become somewhat tempered to war conditions. Happily matters turned out much better than expected, and had it not been for the drought some two years ago the dairying industry would have been able to look back upon a prosperous period. As it is, thanks to the might and vigilance of the Imperial navy, which was able to keep the seas clear for so long, the dairy farmers have enjoyed an excellent season. While unfortunately the herds were reduced in numbers, conditions otherwise were favourable.

Butter has ruled at a good profitable wholesale price locally, and we have been able to clear away the surplus to the London market and participate in the extremely high prices ruling. Reports of various factory meetings coming to hand show that excellent returns have been secured, and indeed to that extent the dairy farmers have benefited from the fact that there is a war. Against this, however, has to be set the uncertainty of the future. It is impossible to say what the position will be next spring, but there certainly should be a united effort made to meet the possible shortage of shipping. If we have a large output and it is impossible to ship any quantity oversea, the industry will be placed in a very embarrassing position. It is the quick cash returns that are the essential feature of the industry, and its financing with the export business hung up will be a grave problem. Yet the interests represented are so important and far-reaching that it will be the imperative duty of the Federal Government to see that the industry is protected as much as possible. The question should be faced at once, in order that some scheme shall be elaborated in good time, and the views of those closely concerned should find expression at this conference.

THE DAIRYING INDUSTRY.

Mr. Percy C. Basche writes:—Do we realise what the dairying industry means to Australia? The butter season just closing has been the most successful in the history of the industry. Thanks to the good offices of the British Government, practically all of our surplus butter and cheese has been carried to the United Kingdom, where it has made record prices. Although record summer prices were also made on local sales, the people of this State obtained their 16,000 cases consumed weekly at approximately 20/ per cwt under London parity. This fine "war" contribution cost the dairymen of the State, in round figures, £200,000 over the export season. Our friends in New Zealand have not been so happily placed—something like 300,000 cases of butter, and 150,000 crates of cheese being still in cold store at various ports of the Dominion, owing to want of shipping space. Now Australia is faced with the same tonnage problem. The Imperial authorities have decreed that beef must be given preference over butter. It has been suggested that beef must be carried, but perhaps not in its bulkiest form. To win the war is our first consideration, and to that end all parts of the Empire must make sacrifices. The loss of shipping has been appalling, and now, no doubt owing more to national than private reasons, the P. and O. service is to be withdrawn from Australia. The dairying industry of Australia owes much to this fine company, with its large refrigerated ships. With export cut entirely off, this huge industry must fail.

The Government cannot, must not, let the industry fail. It has been suggested that attention should be directed to Eastern markets. An excellent idea—but this will take time to develop. Something must be done promptly. The large dairy herds are a big national asset, and must be saved from the beef cask. Prompt action is necessary, because the spring surplus of butter will soon arrive. The cows must be milked twice daily. On many farms girls, young brothers, and aged parents of our boys at the front are going through the daily grind; the wheels must be kept going, and the machinery ready for our boys' return. In all repatriation schemes of the eastern States, dairying plays an important part. The members of the Butter Factory Managers and Secretaries' Association meet in conference this week. Opportunities should be taken to tackle this important work. The best brains are wanted to save the industry, and a conference of Primary Producers' Union, factory managers, merchants and exporters, cold store owners, members of Parliament representing dairying constituencies, and officers of the Agricultural Department, should be held, and a live representative working committee be appointed. The functions which belong to the State Government, as affecting the industry, should be considered. Similar procedure should be followed in Queensland and Victoria, and when the States have everything in order, joint representations should be made to the Federal Government. The Press, which has already done so much for the industry, can also render yeoman service.

Mr. John Russell, manager, Dairy Produce Department, N.Z. L. and M. Agency Co., Ltd., writes:—The outlook at present in regard to obtaining refrigerated steamer freight for the export of the incoming season's surplus butter is not too promising, and in view of the fact that cheese may be wanted for Imperial requirements in preference to butter, factories favourably situated might, with advantage, take into consideration the manufacture of cheese. If butter is not urgently wanted for army requirements, and cheese is, the latter will probably have preference in connection with whatever freight may be offering.

LAND LEGISLATION.

Mr. W. A. Ewers writes:—In view of the intimation in the "Herald" that land legislation amendments are now being considered by the State Cabinet, may I be permitted to refer briefly to one or two anomalies that bear harshly on bona-fide settlers? Under the Conversion Act certain residential settlers were allowed to convert their holdings into C.P. or C.P. and C.L. (with a valuation limit of £3000) at the capital value declared at date of selection. It is provided that where the applicant had already done at least 10 years' residence no further residence was required if the holding were converted into C.P. Thus if this condition had been complied with (as was generally the case) the converted holding could either be held or be transferred to another holder free from residence conditions. As, however, in many cases financial considerations prevented holders from making more than a portion of their selections C.P. they generally contented themselves with a proportion of C.P. and with the balance in reserve as C.L., the latter to be converted to A.C.P. when the settlers became financially strong enough. As the Act was submitted it was actually proposed that these settlers should be penalised for their financial inability to convert to C.P., solely by having the question of "living area" opened up at any and every time they applied to convert any part of their C.L. area; but this monstrous provision was deleted by pressure from the Legislative Council. A striking anomaly, however, still remains in that while the settler could have converted his whole area into C.P., and thereby become entirely free of residence conditions, he, because he did not make it all C.P. at the time, now becomes liable for a renewed term of residence every time he makes an additional C.P. out of his C.L. To my knowledge in numerous cases men who have already done upwards of 20 years' continuous residence are in this position, which surely if there is any sense of justice in our Legislature only needs pointing out in order to be rectified.

Another extraordinary position was that brought about by the gratuitous and cruelly unjust amendment of section 186 in the Amending Act of 1916, altering the terms relating to the subdivision of settlement leases. The Act referred to was mainly a machinery measure, and for that reason (added to the fact that the party responsible for its introduction had an indifferent opposition) it slipped through the House with practically no discussion. The amendment referred to stands out from all others, in that it introduced a vital change in policy. Briefly, it provides that where a settlement lease has been subdivided, and the subdivided area becomes the subject of an application for conversion to C.P., the convertible value shall be, not the value at which it was gazetted (as was the case prior to this amendment), but the value "as at date of application to convert."

The effect of this amendment is to subvert the intention of the Conversion Act (so far as the subdivision of holdings is concerned), and to place a definite stumbling block in the way of putting two families on land which had hitherto maintained only one. Apparently the only reason for this extraordinary amendment, which cuts across the grain of the professed land policy of both political parties, was the advice of departmental authorities, who, when amending land legislation is being considered, are keenly alert and ever ready with suggestions that are apparently calculated to increase revenue, without regard to their incidence on the individual settler. In this case the Act passed so quietly and quickly that settlement lessees (who in 19 cases out of 20 had deferred conversion on account of financial considerations) found too late that the innocent-looking measure had filched away a considerable portion of the rights conferred on them by the Conversion Act.

It is true that in spite of the department the settler concerned has been able to find a way out of the difficulty—but at considerable expense—by first converting to "homestead grant" the portion he wishes to dispose of; both parties being then enabled to convert each separate area to C.P. and C.L. at the gazetted value. Needless to say, the Minister (otherwise the department) strongly opposed this procedure, but, fortunately in the interest of settlement, without success. Surely as this amendment was uncalled for, has proved to be harassing in its incidence, has tended to block an avenue of extended settlement, and, in addition, is now shown to be entirely futile, its repeal should be insisted upon by the National party, and opposed by none.

GRANTHAM STUD FARM.

Mr. O. Wilson, Eastwood, writes:—In your issue of the 12th instant you announce the purchase by the Government of the Grantham Poultry Farm, and give a little of its early history. The Grantham Poultry Farm was originated by the writer, and brought into existence in a back yard in Shaftesbury-road, Burwood, in 1886. After a trial run of a year it was removed to Glenfield, on the main Southern line, but, being unable to purchase or obtain a long lease of the property on which it was situated, it was decided to remove it to Plumpton, much against my wish, as the place was quite unsuitable owing to its isolation and distance from rail. Mr. James Hadlington, the Government poultry expert, came on the scene some time after the removal to Plumpton.

THE WHEAT STACKS.

Mr. S. C. Browning, Amberley, writes:—I notice Mr. Trethowan has stated that the wheat stackers have adopted the go-slow policy. That the statement is true no one doubts, as such contemptible beings who go out on strike and allow the mice and weather to destroy the wheat unless they are paid the very modest sum of 20s per day are capable of doing that, and worse. A speaker at the P.L.L. conference stated that they wanted a 6-hour day, so that they would have more time to read and enjoy life. Very few of these union men work the full eight hours per day, and they have 16 hours out of the 24 to sleep, eat, drink, and be merry, and yet it is not enough. What about the farmer who works from 10 to 16 hours a day, and downright slavery at that, often for a mere pittance? What time has he to read and enjoy life? The Minister, Mr. Grahame, has appealed to the farmers to help to recondition the wheat. I would also appeal to and urge every farmer who is in a position to do so to respond to the Minister's appeal, not because the Minister deserves any sympathy or help, but to save the wheat from destruction. The Minister states it is the farmers' wheat. That is not so. How can it be the farmers' wheat when it has been taken away from them? It is quite evident that these men (who have seized the farmers' wheat, forced the farmer to deliver it to them, and have taken all the control and management of it out of the farmers' hands, not even allowing them to have a representative on the Wheat Board) intend to make the farmer suffer the whole of the loss sustained through their action and their gross neglect and carelessness in the handling of the wheat. Any farmer would know that to stack thousands of bags of wheat in huge stacks, as the Government has done for nearly two years, would breed millions of mice. The Government is to a very large extent to blame for the mice plague. If the wheat had been left in the farmers' hands they would never have left it a breeding ground for the mice. Mr. Grahame has opposed the farmers having a representative on the Wheat Board, and yet he comes to the farmers to help him. He, with others, boasted that they had saved the farmers from ruin, that the speculator would have exploited the farmer, and given him 1s 6d per bushel for his wheat, and that if the Government did not take control of the shipping the wheat would never be shipped. Yet, what a deplorable position they are in to-day! It has been one of the greatest bungles of the age, and the whole of the business has been bungled and mismanaged right through. And the farmer has to put up with all the loss, which is a gross injustice. What would the city people and business men think and say if the Government had taken their goods in the way it has taken the farmers' wheat, and then told them that they would have to put up with the loss? There would be such a hue and cry all over the State as there never had been before.

With regard to the sale of the farmers' wheat, the Wheat Board sold it to the Imperial Government for 4s 9d f.o.b. The Imperial Government is selling the same wheat to-day to the Home millers at 10s 8d per bushel. Allowing that the freight to England is 5s per bushel, which is 180s per ton, the Imperial Government is making a profit of 1s 3d per bushel on the farmers' wheat. But it is more than probable that it does not pay anything like that amount of freight.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

The students from the agriculture classes at the Granville and Sydney Technical Colleges, accompanied by the instructor, Mr. Henry Lord, visited Mr. Taylor's vineyard at Aurora, Lidcombe, on Saturday afternoon last for a practical lesson in pruning grape vines.

DAIRYING ON THE MANNING.

WINGHAM.—The cold weather has affected considerably the cream supplies at the various district factories. However, all things considered, the supplies are maintaining a very satisfactory standard for this time of the year. The Wingham factory, financially, was never in a better position than it is at present, and many improvements have been made during the past year or so in the appointments of the factory. The new factory at Croki for the Manning River Co-operative Dairy Company, will be one of the most up-to-date in the State. It is to be built of reinforced concrete. The factory will be built right on the company's water frontage. A retaining wall, which is to be the main wall carrying the factory, will be built of reinforced concrete, 2ft or 3ft through, resting on a deep and solid foundation below the river bed. The wall will be at the edge of the river bank, and half of the factory will be over the land and half over the water. When complete the cream for the new factory will simply be taken direct from the wharf into the receiving room by means of electric lifts. It is estimated that a saving of 1½ hour will be made in dealing with every load of cream. The churn will be driven by motor power instead of steam, and the present suction gas plant will generate the electricity. It is proposed to make provision to treat dried milk, condensed milk, or cheese. The company is arranging to dry butter milk, and treat it for confectionery and other food purposes.

CANE CUTTING.

GRAFTON.—Cane-cutting gangs have been apportioned in anticipation of the coming crushing season at Harwood. A number of the old hands have left for the Richmond, where a longer season is expected, but there will remain sufficient labour for all requirements. The exceptionally heavy frosts have injured the cane in the lowlying places, but the crops generally have so far withstood the ordeal well. The frosts were very severe, as is indicated by the fact that the lantana bushes have been killed down to the river's edge on the Lower Clarence.

DAIRYING.

BOMBALA.—During May the Cathcart Dairy Company manufactured 9879lb of butter, which realised £684 11s 10d. The working expenses for the month amounted to £82 11s 6d, leaving £602 0s 4d to be divided among the suppliers.

MILTON.—For the half-year ended April 30 the Ulladulla Refrigerating Butter Company produced 355,306lb of choicest butter, 9787lb first grade, and 3634lb of second grade, making a total of 368,727lb, being an increase of about 21 tons as compared with the corresponding period of last season. The value of the output was £34,697. For the season 2724 boxes were exported on the company's account, and advices have been received of the sale of 942 boxes at average gross rate of 202/7 per cwt. The manufacturing account showed a net profit of £328/1/8.

ANTHRAX VACCINE.

COONABARABRAN.—At a meeting of the Pasture Protection Board a resolution was carried that the Government purchase the M'Garvie-Smith anthrax vaccine preparation.

I went to buy a Gramophone

I found something infinitely greater——The VOCALION!

BEFORE I purchased I looked at many types of disc playing instruments. Fine though some of them were, the differences seemed trifling. All looked alike. One may have given a little better results in instrumental music, and another with the human voice. And then my quest led me to the NEW INSTRUMENT, the Aeolian-Vocalion, and all others faded from mind.

In the Vocalion I heard music I never dreamed a Phonograph could produce. Sweet, full richness of tone vibrant with the very quality of life, delicate tonal tints marked the difference of instrument and instrument. Kase was the model to satisfy my desires, its appeal was irresistible. I was charmed with the "GRADUOLA" expression device; by gentle pressure the music seemed to melt to my touch, swelling forth to a full flood of melody at will: what joy at expressing my own feeling, and then at the end of the selection all was silent, it had automatically stopped.

The Aeolian-Vocalion

THE GREATEST OF ALL DISC PLAYING INSTRUMENTS WAS THE ONE OF MY CHOICE

THE BRITISH FRONT.

A message from one of the correspondents on the Western front published this morning describes the damage to public and private buildings observed by British soldiers fighting on the dunes below Ostend. The damage is the natural result of the bombardment from the sea and from the air directed against the submarine bases on the Belgian coast since the beginning of this year. The interesting fact stated in the report is that the damage was observed by British soldiers. German messages have recently reported a heavy bombardment in this quarter without stating by whom it was conducted. Official messages had supported the belief that this small section of the defence beginning at Nieuport was still in the hands of a Belgian army occupying the line taken up after the loss of Dixmude in November, 1914. The presence of British troops on the coast, if they are in any strength, could have only one meaning. It would indicate an intention that the army should co-operate with the naval and air forces in an attack on the submarine bases of the enemy, or at least on one of them. Ostend was once a landing-place for British troops from which Sir Henry Rawlinson set out on the expedition to Antwerp which ended in the first battle of Ypres. The strategy of an attack on the German communications through Belgium, from which so much was hoped after the battle of the Marne, led to no more substantial result than the report that Russian troops had been sent for the purpose from Archangel. When the coast was open the British had no army, now that they have reserves of troops the coast is closed. This coastal expedition, however, may be almost as important at this stage of the war as a landing on the coast would have been two years ago. If it ends in depriving the Germans of their submarine bases on the Belgian coast it will tend to cripple them in the use of by far their most dangerous and their most trusted weapon. The mere fact that the expedition has been sent is an indication of the change that has come over the conditions on this front since April. It is not long since the cablegrams used to tell us at regular intervals of the concentrating of troops and material in Flanders preparatory to an attack at Ypres. The Germans never ceased suggesting that they would make another attempt by way of Ypres to reach the French coast, there to establish a whole series of bases against England. They clearly lost the initiative on the West when the battle of Arras destroyed the pivot of line. The positions on which they could always concentrate for an attack were lost at the battle of Messines. The new line occupied by the British was on the side of the loop looking towards Lille, not on the side from which the enemy had directed the most successful of his attacks in April, 1915. But though the enemy retains the positions from which he secured some of his road to the sea the British have gained so much strength and freedom that they now seem safe for attack. The question no longer is when they will make a new attack on a weakened line. The possibility of their being able to combine a victory on land with a new submarine campaign is negligible. The question now is what strategical use the British will make of their victory, and on what part of the enemy's system their next blow will fall.

The surprise of the battle of Messines was all the greater because at first it did not seem to fit to General Haig's main plan of attack. The advance after the battle of the Somme had taken two directions, eastward toward St. Quentin, and north-eastward by way of Vimy Heights to Lens. From the middle of April the British have been in the suburbs of both St. Quentin and Lens, but have made no effort to complete the capture of either. Their most serious efforts have been to destroy or to pierce the Hindenburg line, and to hold their positions on the two tributaries of the Scheldt, the Scarpe and the Sensee, which guard the approaches to Douai and Lille. The battle of Messines was far to the north of the Arras battle, and was capable of being interpreted as a defensive movement only. But we have only to remember the early strategy of the war to see how greatly the victory may assist the British advance. All the early battles up to the end of the Loos offensive were part of a scheme to capture Lille. They failed for various reasons, of which two of the most important were the inability of the French to capture Vimy Heights and the loss of ground suffered by the British during the second battle of Ypres. It seemed when the Somme offensive began as if the Allies had abandoned their earlier strategy, and had determined to attack the enemy's centre instead of on his lines of communication. The course of the retreat, however, has disposed of the theory that the only object of the Somme battle was to kill Germans, or that it was no longer intended to drive him out of Flanders by threatening his lines of communications. It is now clear that the Allies aim at breaking through the enemy's defences by attacking simultaneously or successively from the west, the south, and the north-west. The idea of an early resumption of open fighting suggested by a too sanguine reading of Sir Douglas Haig's interview has not been realised. The attack has developed after each of the two great victories into a series of attacks on positions such as marked the whole of the fighting on the Somme. The enemy resistance in all this fighting has been strengthened by the presence of new troops released from Russia. But his new strength is counterbalanced by several factors of decisive importance. He is no longer able to concentrate his defence as he could when the attack was on a narrow front. The British artillery has improved in numbers and in scientific precision to an extent hitherto unanticipated, and the endurance of the German soldier has at last to be tested by nine or ten months' fighting instead of by an attack which began when half the year was over.

SHIPS AND SILOS.

Can Australia take her part in the shipbuilding programme of the Allies under the stress of Germany's submarine campaign? The answer should not be difficult to find in view of what Canada is doing at the present moment, though the two sections of the Empire differ radically in many respects. Canadian shipbuilding yards are full, and what has been done in munition-making is to be duplicated there on the other side of an Imperial activity. But then Canada has brought these sides of manufacturing activity to a high pitch of perfection. She has responded to the stimulus of competition from the United States; and, indeed, American capital and American skill have crossed the border into Canada to perfect an organisation intended originally to make the Dominion self-supporting, but found eventually to be capable of meeting all comers in the world's markets. It became a case of rivals co-operating, and finding profit in both competition and co-operation. With the war in full blast, Canada has been able to assist Great Britain materially, and all the time her own financial position has been greatly strengthened. Australia has no such stimulus except on the side of primary production. Across a border defined upon the map, and marked with Customs officials making inquisition at every crossing, the comparatively small Canadian community finds a hundred millions of people practically within touch; but here the continent is our own, and our seclusion has been the cause of our unreadiness to rise to a great occasion. It is not that Australia is incapable of building ships to meet an exigency undreamed of in past thoughts and calculations of war. She has the materials, as the Prime Minister has just remarked, and she has the men. Her workshops have turned out products that have gone beyond Australia to be tested against the best of other countries' production; and even Queensland has sent sugar and mining machinery abroad equal to the best in the world. Walkers, Limited, of Maryborough, has as great a record in one way as Mort's Dock of Sydney has in another. Australian inventors can hold their own anywhere, and Australian enterprise is equal to any demand that can be made upon it.

The answer to the question at the head of this article, therefore, ought not to be hard to find. In yesterday's issue Mr. Hughes gave in effect a direct challenge when discussing the difficulty in which we find ourselves with 140,000,000 bushels of wheat unshipped; and the problems of storing the grain and ultimately of shipping it in our own vessels were set forth for the Australian public to ponder. We must have ships and silos. Can we build them? The reply can only be made at last in terms of men willing to work. Have we enough loyal Australians ready to do for the Empire what is being done in Great Britain by the unions so that Germany may be beaten? Are our unions sufficiently impressed with the Commonwealth's need at the present moment? For there is a direct personal concern in this business, even though the flag, and the Empire for which it stands, may not appeal to some of our trades-unionists. Canada's immense advantage as a constructing section of the Empire is being found in an expanding revenue with burdens that are being appreciably lightened. If we were to follow suit by concentrating all our energies upon conserving our wheat to-day, so as to be able to ship it to-morrow, more than half the load of anxiety as to the wisdom of growing more wheat and raising more produce would be lifted. What use can it be to pile up wheat stacks for mice to destroy or to fill cold storage with produce that cannot be removed? The issue is perfectly clear, therefore, and we must now begin to help ourselves or be left helpless and forlorn. It is all a question of labour made available, and of unions heartily agreed to give with both hands. Already the representatives of the principal bodies concerned have met the Government in conference, and something has been done to clear the way. But will the great unionism of Australia, with its enrolment of half a million men or so, make this a matter of loyal co-operation in the interests of Australia and the Empire? This is where we stand to-day, if not in doubt at least in the tension of waiting for the word which shall justify the Commonwealth before the world as fit for the responsibilities of nationhood.

WAR SAVING.

Mr. Hughes is to continue at the Town Hall to-morrow the appeal begun in Victoria for a more general effort to assist the Government of the Commonwealth with war savings. Something has been done; but an infinitely greater response to the call to thrift is required if we are to do our proper share in winning the war. The small saving is the strong saving. John Wesley when laying the foundations of a great religious denomination saw and insisted upon the power of the penny. He made subsequent success possible by demanding from his supporters a penny per week; and those who know what has been done in modern Church work generally on those lines can bear testimony to the enormous possibilities of the humble penny. The average working man's wife understands well enough what lies in the circumference of this coin, and she has not been behindhand in saving for a share in past war loans. But to-day the Prime Minister wants to get the whole community behind him. He wants the penny saver, whose shilling so soon turns into a pound; but he seeks to impress the man and woman who can save a shilling without feeling much strain but who do not realise the need for it. The idea in the minds of so many people of this class is that money put aside for the war is so much lost or surrendered; and they cannot understand that they are only saving it with interest added. If the satisfaction of helping the Empire—which, after all, is a real enough interest on money lent—does not move them, surely the appeal to their love of power in possession must prove strong enough. The money is entrusted to the Commonwealth with the wealth of Australia as security for its repayment. War saving certificates, therefore, whether for one pound or a thousand pounds represent something "as good as gold" to the person purchasing; but to the Government they become the very sinews of war. No doubt there are people to whom nothing of the sort will appeal. The effort made last Saturday in Brisbane on the Albion Park Racecourse is to the point. Although several thousands of pounds had been distributed through the totalisator only one person among the number drawing their winnings could be found to surrender the shillings less than twenty required to buy a full £ certificate. Then one of the racecourse proprietors came forward and bought a £100 certificate for £87 10s; so that two men only in a crowd had any time for the war or any thought of their share in it for good or ill. This should be the touchstone of every form of activity in our midst; and if the Brisbane experience is to be a fair test of the value of horse racing at the present moment the sooner it is stopped the better.

WAR SAVINGS CAMPAIGN.

MR. HUGHES TO SPEAK.

The public meeting to be held in the Town Hall to-morrow evening will begin in New South Wales the campaign which has already been started in Victoria to impress upon the people of Australia the importance of investing their savings in the Federal war savings certificates.

The Prime Minister, Mr Hughes, will expound the scheme, and he will be supported by Mr. Fuller, the Acting Premier, and others. The Lord Mayor will preside.

A RACECOURSE EXPERIENCE.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Elaborate arrangements were made by the Queensland Recruiting Committee for the disposal of war saving certificates on the Albion Park Racecourse on Saturday. Returned wounded soldiers delivered appeals to the crowds as they left the totalisator with their winnings after each race. Up to the last race, only one certificate of the value of £1 was bought. Then Mr. Ben Nathan, of Melbourne, and one of the proprietors of the course, came along and took a £100 certificate at a cost of £87 10s. Soon after the meeting, the secretary of the recruiting committee, Captain Dash, remarked that the average racegoer will neither fight nor pay. The committee's attempt is to be repeated in the hope that the racegoing public will think better of their attitude.

NEW ZEALAND AND CONSCRIPTION.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), June 21.

At length New Zealand has come to the parting of the ways. Voluntaryism plus conscription has given place to conscription pure and simple.

The voluntary system worked well. Most of those who have upheld the honour of the Dominion at the front have done their duty to the Empire under the elastic system with which we have so long been contented. But there is nothing to regret. The men who were called up under the full effect of the system left camp full of vigour and enthusiasm, and now we know what they have done. New Zealand papers are filled with the results of the Messines high endeavour, spelt in the form of huge casualty lists, and there is scarcely now a home in our small though scattered Dominion that is not affected, directly or indirectly. Now, however—coming back to the question of service—it has been found that the absolutely earnest Empire enthusiast has disappeared; he is either dead or wounded or a prisoner, and the "system" is taking the rest of the able-bodied community by the neck, and saying, "Get in."

Appeals nowadays are of slight value. "Send us men" is the order, and men are being sent. There is no talk about conscription. "Compulsion" has long been a recognised and necessary fact—so much so that any decent person shudders at the bare idea of refusal of service. The more mothers who have lost their sons, the more young women who have lost their "boys," the more youngsters who have read of the wounds and deeds of their brothers than the more public opinion is concentrated on the crucial point: Win the war.

It is the women who are playing 75 per cent. of the game in this respect; not that they are urging on our men unduly or making themselves unpleasant by way of comment, but at home and abroad they are more or less elusively making it plain that they want our men to go and fight for them—and our men are going.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Cook, Minister for the Navy, opened a home at Carlingford yesterday morning for Private Taylor, who has been wounded in France, and who has not yet returned to this State. The home was erected by the local branch of the Voluntary Workers' Association. In the afternoon he unveiled a roll of honour containing over one thousand names at Annandale.

Mr. T. R. Bavin, M.L.A. for Gordon, who has been in North Queensland for the past five weeks, has returned to Sydney, much benefited in health.

NEW ZEALAND RESEARCH COUNCIL.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Monday.

The Council of Education recommends the establishment of a National Advisory Council of Research, consisting of four scientific men, including a scientific expert attached to one of the Government departments, three members connected with the leading industries and one representing agriculture. It also recommends an increase in the number of research scholarships and fellowships; that three Ministers form a research committee of the Executive Council, and that all proposals of the National Advisory Council involving additional expenditure or questions of policy should come before that committee for approval.

THE BANK ROBBERY.

The man who took a bank book containing cheques and cash to the value of £680 8s 11d belonging to the Australian General Electric Company from the counter at the Bank of Australasia, Martin-place, on Saturday morning was seen by a customer and not by the teller, as stated. The customer took no action, thinking that the book belonged to the person who removed it, and was unable to give a description of him.

The pass book together with the cheques, which totalled £616, were returned to the General Electric Company, Goulburn-street, by yesterday morning's post. It is assumed that the thief had considered that the passing of the cheques, which were crossed, would involve no small risk of detection.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

The destruction wrought by the mice plague in the wheat areas of New South Wales is illustrated by a splendid series of photographs taken at Illabo, Ariah Park, and Ganmain, and published in this week's "Mail." We are shown neatly-built stacks as they were before the visitation of the rodents and the same stacks in a state of chaos; and in other pictures we see farmers and labourers at work rebagging the wheat, building fresh stacks, and surrounding them with galvanised iron fences. The recent field dog trials at Macquarie Plains are excellently illustrated. A page picture entitled "The Quail-shooters" is a fine example of outdoor photography. As usual, there is a notable collection of war pictures. A portrait of Lieut. Rupert Vance Moon, V.C., occupies the title page. Several striking photographs illustrate the British advance on the western front. Australians are seen at Favreuil; there are interesting pictures from Palestine; and portraits of many killed and wounded Australians and of fighting families from New South Wales. Several photographs illustrate scenes in Petrograd in the early days of the revolution.

LATE MAJOR REDMOND, M.P.

SERVICE AT ST. MARY'S.

The full honours of the Roman Catholic ritual were paid to the late Major William H. K. Redmond, M.P., at the Requiem High Mass in St. Mary's Cathedral yesterday. For nearly an hour before the commencement of the solemn tribute to the representative Irish Nationalist, who had given his life as a soldier of the British Empire while fighting in France with the Irish Division, the bell-ringers, under Captain McDonald, rang a muffled peal. Meantime, hundreds of men and women, undeterred by the cold and the rain, passed in through the College-street doors of the Cathedral. Those who arrived after 10 o'clock had to stand. There were mourning draperies on the white reredos of the High Altar, and the Commonwealth flag was placed with the green flag of Ireland on the catafalque in front of the sanctuary rails. Captain McLean was in charge of 72 soldiers from the Engineers' Depot in Moore Park. The crowded congregation included members and officers of the Hibernian, A.C.B. Society, the Irish National Foresters, and the A. H. C. Guild, in regalia.

Archbishop Kelly, who presided, was attended by the Rev. P. Piquet, S.M. (St. Patrick's), and the Rev. J. Furlong. Monsignor O'Haran was the celebrant of the Mass, with Rev. J. Brosnan (Orange), deacon, and Rev. M. Sherin, sub-deacon. The ceremonies were under the direction of the Rev. E. Brauer and the Rev. John O'Gorman, Administrator of St. Mary's Cathedral. The Very Rev. Dr. Hayden (president of St. Patrick's College), Manly, conducted a large sanctuary choir of priests and ecclesiastical students. Unaccompanied throughout, the harmonised singing was very impressive. Two buglers sounded the "Last Post" after the final Requiescat in Pace.

Mr. J. J. Dalton (Orange), Captain M. F. Dalton, and Mrs. Dalton, Mr. E. B. Dalton, Mr. J. J. Dalton, junior, Mr. T. J. Dalton and Mrs. Dalton, Mr. Mark Sheldon and Mrs. Sheldon, Miss Dalton, and Miss Nugent occupied the seats which were reserved for relations of the late Major Redmond.

Mr. John Garland, K.C. (Solicitor-General), represented the Government. Among the other occupants of the front benches were Alderman R. D. Meagher, M.L.C. (Lord Mayor), Mr. Nesbitt (Town Clerk), Judge Murray (Lieutenant-Governor of Papua), Major Lynch (representing the State Commandant, Brigadier-General Lee), Captain M'Lean, Sir Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., M. Chayet (Consul-General for France), Mr. Justice Heydon, Mr. John Meagher, M.L.C., Mr. J. Travers, M.L.C., Mr. P. M'Garry, M.L.A., Mr. C. Lazzarini, M.L.A., Aldermen T. H. Kelly, T. Barlow, J. Farrell, and M'Gree, Dr. Chas. W. MacCarthy (Irish National Executive), Mr. J. M. Taylor (Public Service Board), Dr. Kenna, Dr. James Hughes, Dr. H. M. Moran, Mr. J. Merrick (representing St. Stanislaus' College Old Boys' Union), Messrs. B. Gaffney, L. Cotter, A. Madden, J. J. O'Brien, P. S. Cleary, A. S. Back, A. B. Crossman, J. J. Carroll, and I. Moriarty.

The officers of the Hibernian A.C.B. Society present were Messrs. R. King (District President), C. Kelly, D.V.P., C. Devlin, P.D.P., P. O'Loughlin (district secretary), P. M'Namara (district treasurer), M. M'Grath, P. Sullivan, M. Fitzgerald, T. Shannon, and J. Fox. Mr. Fitzgibbon (High Chief Ranger), Mr. A. Cawley (past H.C.R.), and Mr. T. Avery represented the Irish National Foresters. The A.H.C. Guild representatives were Mr. J. T. Gurr (Warden-General) and Mr. J. E. Burke (secretary-general).

Archbishop Kelly, in the course of an address, said that among the sad experiences of the war which was still raging throughout Europe they had to deplore the loss of Major William Redmond, one of the oldest and most respected representatives of Ireland in the House of Commons. They were assembled to pray for the soul of one who had died bravely, and to learn lessons of wisdom for the better guidance of their own lives. Having glorified God as a patriotic lover of his country, William Redmond had himself been glorified in his death. Commencing his political career by declaring himself a hill-side man, the juvenile member of the Irish National Party had a heart aflame with the desire to see the blessings of self-government restored to his native land. From his first visit to Australia in 1883 as an advocate of Home Rule for Ireland to the day of his death Mr. Redmond was true to the highest ideals of Celtic-Australian citizenship. It was a traditional characteristic of the Redmond family to hold out the olive branch so that Irishmen might be united for the common good. It was a tradition in the family to do everything that could possibly be done for union and for peace. Almost at the initiation of the Home Rule movement the father of the patriot now at rest proposed a resolution in which it was declared that no measure of self-government would be acceptable to Irish Catholics which did not safeguard the liberties of their Protestant fellow-countrymen. If an Irish Parliament were established to-morrow on College Green the Irish Protestants would have nothing to fear. Never in the history of Ireland were Protestants injured or unjustly treated when the Roman Catholics had the upper hand. Now that Ireland was drawing nearer the goal of national hope, it would seem that some legislators, otherwise just and honest, could not throw off their prejudice in regard to the Roman Catholics of Erin's Isle. These men could not see that a real union, a union of hearts, was essential to the strength and stability of the Empire from the Irish standpoint. Could it be said that since the passing of the last Home Rule Bill English statesmen had acted in an honourable manner to the Irish leaders who trusted them? There had been a flagrant breach of faith. Still, the late Mr. Redmond, like his brother, the leader of the Irish Parliamentary Party, had gone on helping the British Army by recruiting in Ireland. When on St. Patrick's Day, 1916, King George presented shamrocks to the Irish Guards, it was said that Ireland's triple leaf symbolised loyalty, valour, and endurance. Surely those heroic qualities had been shown since that St. Patrick's Day by Irish soldiers at the front. In almost his last words William Redmond appealed to those who were still witholding justice from Ireland. Addressing the members of the House of Commons, he said: "In the name of God, we who are about to die appeal to you to seize this opportunity to ensure a new and a brighter era for Ireland." Prepared as they were to make any sacrifice for unity, save the sacrifice of principle, all who loved Ireland should draw a lesson from the patriotic career and from the dying wish of the brave Irishman and true Roman Catholic who gave his life so that his native land might be free, happy, and prosperous, as a self-governing country.

THE HOLIDAY.

Though the rain which fell heavily and persistently during the early hours of the morning on Prince of Wales' Birthday had to some extent ceased at dawn, the outlook was far from reassuring. The aspect of a sky obscured by grey moisture-laden clouds proved depressing, and with the soil thoroughly drenched, and a temperature strongly typical of winter, our citizens found little chance of enjoyment out of doors. The Rosehill races, the principal sporting fixture of the day, were postponed, and any football fixtures adhered to during the afternoon were played under conditions rendering a brilliant exposition of the game—whether Rugby Union, League, Association, or Australian—well-nigh impossible; nevertheless, the contests took place before a considerable number of enthusiasts, for whom inclement weather had no special significance.

As far as railway, tram, and steamer traffic was concerned, the elements of a holiday rush were lacking, and there is little doubt that hundreds of family excursions arranged overnight were reluctantly abandoned. The Railway Commissioners had, as usual, provided cheap trips on the Western, Southern, Northern, and Illawarra lines, embracing a few hours' run into the country, and ample tram accommodation was furnished to those who braved the weather and spent the day by the margin of the sea. About noon things brightened up a bit, but too late, apparently, to affect the exodus from city and suburbs, except in the case of those who preferred a trip down or up the harbour to any other form of celebration. Matinee performances were given at all the theatres, and as the afternoon proved more inviting the patronage was large. The Zoo at Taronga Park also attracted a large number of visitors during the day.

THE TRAFFIC.

There was a great falling-off of the railway and tramway traffic returns yesterday as compared with those for Prince of Wales Birthday of last year. The statement of bookings at Sydney and suburban stations from 5 a.m. to 4 p.m. showed that the passengers totalled 119,157, a decrease of 23,376, and the revenue amounted to £1615 4s 8d, a decrease of £2467 17s 1d. On the main suburban line the passengers numbered 58,573; Illawarra, 28,904; northern, 23,896; western, 5091; and the southern, 2693.

The tramloads of passengers to and from the Agricultural Ground numbered 101, as compared with 100 loads of last year. The traffic to and from the various holiday resorts over and above the ordinary traffic was extremely light. Thirteen carloads were taken to Abbotsford, Bondi 7, Cronulla 5, Narrabeen 11½, The Spit 11½, Taronga Park 5, Watson's Bay 22, Bronte, Coogee, Little Coogee, and La Perouse nil.

FRANCE'S DAY.

"GIVE ALL THAT WE CAN."

There still remains some uncertainty in the public mind as to the date of the appeal for the widows and orphans of France. France's National Day, July 14, falls on a Saturday. The France's Day Committee therefore decided that it would be more suitable to have the collections, button selling, stall-holding, and general work to wind up the great appeal on the Friday, July 13. The Saturday will be devoted to the national celebrations. The French-Australian League of Help has been at work since the beginning of the war, but France's needs have grown enormously, and the cry of the charities for help has become one that cannot be met by France alone. Through the appeal now made, therefore, it is hoped that substantial assistance will go from Australia. The French-Australian League has been sending, in addition to the gifts of clothes for the poor, comforts for the French soldiers, as far as the money available would permit.

Already the money in hand for France's Day is somewhere near £10,000, including a donation of £5000 from the Woolbuyers' Association. Mdlle. Soubeiran, of the League of Help, is meeting with enthusiastic receptions in the northern towns of the State. Yesterday she telegraphed from Lismore that the prospects there were splendid. Mr. Elkington, of the Sydney Grammar School, leaves at the end of this week for a tour of the southern towns.

This afternoon a matinee at the Tivoli Theatre will bring the addition of a handsome amount to the fund. The programme will be of a novel character, arranged by M. Albert Goossens and Miss Nellie Leach. The organising president of the France's Day Committee, Mr. Neville Mayman, will appear in the two quarrel scenes from "The School for Scandal," with Mrs. T. H. Kelly. The floor and dress circle have been entirely booked, so that the gallery alone is available.

The committee is desirous of hearing from the suburban committees as to the number of collecting boxes required. Applications should be sent to the committee, France's Day, 159 King-street, where subscriptions are being received.

The Attorney-General, Mr. D. R. Hall, has forwarded the following letter to the committee:—"No one can contemplate the heroism of the men and women of France, and the service they did to humanity in preventing the Huns from over-running Europe whilst our Empire made ready to repel the enemy, without being moved by admiration and gratitude for our heroic ally. All Australia can do to honour and to assist the French cause on France's Day shall be gladly done."

Mr. A. B. Piddington, of the Interstate Commission, has written to the committee:—"Nearly a century and a half ago on Bunker's Hill, 'Democracy' (in Carlyle's words) 'announced in rifle volleys, death-winged, that she was born, and, whirlwind-like, would envelop the world.' In 1793 France proclaimed the same message for herself and for all nations who desired to cast out their aristocracies. Great Britain on each of these occasions forsook for the time the cardinal creed of all her history. Now these three Powers are united as a triple alliance of the human spirit, with every other great democracy, in the common effort to establish Liberty throughout all Europe enduringly. The soil of France is now hallowed by its possession of armies of men from many nations fallen in the universal cause. But France's own tribute of human life exceeds that of all others. It is our duty to apply, in our succour of France, her own example—to give all that we can."

UNIONS AT LOGGERHEADS.

WAR CONDITIONS AND THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

LITHGOW, Monday.

The members of the Small Arms Factory Union have refused to sit on the Eight-hour Committee with members of the Amalgamated Engineers, owing to the latter working more than eight hours per day at the factory when, it is declared, there was no necessity for so doing, as engineers were available. This latter statement the engineers denied, and stated they were working ten hours per day at the request of the Defence Department, and in order to keep the factory in full operation. It was also pointed out that this system was only in operation in the tool-room. Branches of other associations took up the attitude that the action of the A.S.E. was detrimental to the eight-hour movement, and a motion was carried that the explanation given be not accepted. The engineers' delegates then left the room. This means that neither the No. 1 nor the No. 2 branch of the engineers will take part in this year's demonstration.

A MOUNTAIN OF SOCKS.

The appeal recently made by the War Chest Depot for 100,000 pairs of socks has met with the most gratifying response. Saturday last was the final day for receiving socks for this special appeal, which has resulted in over 125,000 pairs.

Mrs. E. Antill, the hon. director of the depot, is most enthusiastic. "The socks are of the most excellent quality throughout, shape and make alike being good, and we are so grateful for the public response, which has been so heartfelt and sincere. We cannot thank the workers too much. Although the real 'appeal' is closed, we still hope to keep up our monthly contribution for abroad, and judging by the quantity of wool which has been given out it is more than likely that our average will be maintained."

A visit just now to the depot is full of interest. Socks are piled literally from floor to ceiling, and there are many helpers sorting these into sizes, stacking them into bundles, and finally putting them into bales for transport. And the great mountain of work stands as a silent testimony of loving thoughts for the boys in the trenches. Many a prayer has been breathed into the woollen rows, and many a kindly wish for the welfare of those so far away. And possibly the toe of each sock holds a message of hope and cheer, for it was the wish of the War Chest that such should be included as a token to all those who are fighting on the other side that the womenfolk they have left at home are thinking of and working for them.

AMELIORATION COMMITTEE

During the past fortnight the amelioration committee of the Australia Day Fund has extended to 1686 cases of returned soldiers, 149 of which number were new cases.

The total expenditure to date, representing 61,616 payments, now amounts to £107,384, while the amount of money distributed during the last fortnight was £2841. 7456 individual cases have engaged the attention of the committee, representing 81 per cent. of the men returned to New South Wales.

PRISONERS IN TURKEY.

Mrs. A. G. Broun, of Newington College, whose nephew, a captain in the Royal Engineers, is a prisoner of war in Turkey, has received information that the prisoners taken by the Turks at the capitulation of Kut-el-Amara were first sent to Aleppo, and are now at Taygard, Turkey in Asia. As it is in the mountains it has been very cold. The prisoners are allowed to write a letter of two pages once a fortnight, and they receive most of the parcels and money sent through the Red Cross.

Mrs. Broun forwards a letter written to the wife of one of the prisoners by the principal medical officer in Kut at the time of the capitulation. "No one," he says, "appears to know the terrible hardships and daily risks of life that the officers and men of the 6th Division endured. Nothing that I could write could depict the reality of the last month, when none of us could walk a mile, and we were always hungry, and often faint for want of food, which we were unable to get. We were being shelled morning and evening, bombed from aeroplanes periodically, and perpetually sniped. . . . I want to make known to the world what the immortal Sixth went through before they gave in."

AUSTRALIA'S GOOD NAME.

An officer, writing to Mr. J. M. Atkinson, of Castlereagh-street, from Egypt, under date April 25, says:—"Officers lately from Australia give very depressing accounts of affairs in Australia, politically and socially. The general opinion over here is that Australia's name has been dragged in the 'muck heap.' One fears to think what is going to happen if they cannot keep up the reinforcements to the divisions now in the field. The news is very good just now from France, and we are all inclined to be very (perhaps too) optimistic as to the future. At all events, I for one will be very thankful when the whole sordid business is over, and we can all settle down and try to lead a better life."

WESTERN FRONT

FRENCH RECOVER LOST TRENCHES.

The latest French communique shows that the French have recovered most of the ground they lost north-east of Soissons.

SUNDAY, ISSUED 4.15 P.M.

Violent reciprocal artillery actions continue in the region of Hurtebise and Craonne (on the Aisne front). We silenced a violent enemy bombardment south of Juvincourt and dispersed assembling infantry.

MONDAY, ISSUED 12.30 A.M.

A sharp counter-attack east of Vauxaillon (north-east of Soissons) resulted in our recapture of the greater part of the salient which was recently taken by the enemy north-east of Moisy Farm.

The artillery duel is rather active in the Hurtebise sector and on the left bank of the Meuse.

BRITISH FRONT.

Only minor operations are reported by Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig.

SUNDAY, ISSUED 2 P.M.

Hostile artillery is active at Croiselles and Messines.

SUNDAY, ISSUED AT 10.50 P.M.

The enemy unsuccessfully attempted raids south-east of Gavrelle and Armentieres.

Enemy artillery has been active near Havrincourt Wood, north of the Scarpe, and at Messines.

We brought down four aeroplanes. One of ours is missing.

GERMAN REPORT.

(Admiralty—per Wireless.)

SUNDAY, ISSUED 6.15 P.M.

We repulsed English reconnoitring advances south of the Scarpe. Our fire compelled the French to evacuate the ground they gained on the 18th and 21st east of Mount Cornillet (Champagne front).

BRITISH ON BELGIAN SEA COAST.

The correspondent of the "Morning Post" on the British front states that British troops are now fighting on the dunes below Ostend. There has been lively contact with the enemy recently, particularly during German raids against the British-held defences at Lombartzyde. The country is sadly changed. The villas, summer hotels, sea-front cafes, and market gardens have been wiped out by the merciless shelling. The population lives in concreted cellars. The British front is seamed by canals and small waterways.

[Ever since the present West front was formed, the few miles of line from the Belgian coast, near Ostend, to the Yser River, where the British trenches now join up, has been held by the Belgians and French. At least a portion of these troops, apparently, have now been relieved by the British.]

AUSTRALIAN TROOPS IN FRANCE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

On June 17 the Commonwealth Government sent the following cable message through the Governor-General to the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. Walter Long):—"On behalf of the people and Government of Australia, we desire to convey hearty congratulations on the recent splendid achievements of the British forces on the West front. The progress which continues to be made in France and Belgium is highly gratifying. Australia is gratified in knowing that her troops participated in the magnificent work, and that they continue to maintain the high reputation which the Australian army has won during this war."

The following reply has been received:—"The British Army Council begs to express sincere gratitude for your Excellency's cordial message. The British army on the West front will be gratified and encouraged by the sympathetic approval of their efforts for the cause of the Empire and the fact that these efforts are being closely watched by their Australian kinsmen. Their progress in France and the repeated acts of heroism have added fresh laurels to those already gained by the Australian Imperial Forces in other theatres of the war."

GERMANY'S PEACE FEARS.

Advices from Zurich state the pan-German Press is publishing an article, which it is believed emanates from the Court in Berlin. It states that peace without annexation or indemnity would be a German catastrophe, wrecking German prestige throughout the world. Even a peace restoring the German colonies for occupied territories would mean England's triumph. Such a result would mean the failure of monarchist principles. If the people lost confidence in Germany's strength and in the government of the future, then social democracy must instal itself throughout the Empire.

The leader of the German majority Socialist party, Herr Scheidemann, writing in "Vorwaerts," denounces the Government for not making clear peace offers. Its vague and clumsy attitude, he says, is forcing Russia to continue to adhere to the allied cause, just as it made America declare war. The wholesale introduction of democratic institutions in Germany is inevitable, and it must be done immediately if the Germans are going to escape the heaviest losses. "We are drifting into a fourth winter of war," declares Scheidemann.

The national collection of fruit stones in Germany in 1916 has resulted in eight billions of kernels being gathered. They will be utilised in the production of oils. The War Office has ordered a similar collection in 1917.

There is a serious coal famine in Germany. Many bakeries are closing. The lighting of Berlin has been cut down by two-thirds. There is a similar shortage in Denmark, where 1,200,000 tons of coal are required and only 400,000 tons are available.

BRITISH IN GREECE.

Mr. Ward Price, official press correspondent, writes:—The British in Thessaly are encamped at Pharsalos, 24 miles south-west of Larissa, where Caesar defeated Pompey in 48 B.C. The British, in conjunction with French cavalry, are collecting arms, of which 12,000 have been taken in a week. The peasants are attempting to hide rifles which are their personal property.

Ex-King Constantine has purchased a magnificent chateau called Chartreuse, near Thun Castle, in Switzerland. It belonged to Baron von Sedlitz, a German officer.

DISORGANISATION IN RUSSIA.

FEAR OF A FAMINE.

LONDON, June 25.

The "Daily News" correspondent in Petrograd says that food is costing the Russians five times as much as in peace time. There are the clearest possible signs of a famine later in the year. Even more serious is the threat of the almost total stoppage of industry, due to the shortage of fuel and material. Yet, the workmen are continually demanding enormous increases in wages. There was grave danger in the big railway strike, which the Government manifesto luckily averted.

The Cossack army is displaying great distrust of the extremists, and a desire for the stability of the country. This is of great importance, the temporary Government being confident that the Cossacks will support it in the work of creating a strong and united state.

M. Thomas (French Minister for Munitions), who has returned to Paris from Russia, expresses confidence that Russia will resume the offensive. He visited the Roumanian front, where a reorganised and enthusiastic army awaits Russia's signal.

A manifesto has been issued by the people of Petrograd apropos of the anarchist outbreak, and the seizure by them of General Durnovo's house. The manifesto, which is signed by the "All Russia Conference of Workmen and Soldiers," by the "All Russia Peasants' Conference," and by all the Socialists' parties except the extremists, says:—"The extremists in the Viborg quarter are calling out the people to the streets without the assent of the signatories." The manifesto points out that the action of the extremists at the present distressing juncture may harm the work of the revolution.

"You are called out to the streets," continues the manifesto, "in order to assist in deposing the Provisional Government, the support of which we consider essential. Bloody disorders may arise from peace demonstrations."

The manifesto urges the people to beware of the counter-revolutionaries, who are waiting an opportunity to crush the revolution, and appeals to the people in the name of the active army to avoid the streets, and to abjure demonstrations.

PESSIMISTIC REPORTS.

A telegram from Petrograd describes the situation as undoubtedly serious. A Minister recently described Russia as a patient in a high fever, and it depended on the toughness of the country's constitution whether she survived or not. The anarchists who seized General Durnovo's house continue to refuse to evacuate the villa, and threaten to blow it up if the Government should attempt to expel them. The marvellous patience and docility of the great mass of the Russian people alone make it possible for the country to weather the storm.

It is noteworthy that, despite the universal demand for land nationalisation and expropriation of all private lands, the Jews, who are shrewd business people, are rapidly buying up land throughout Russia. M. Tseretelli (Minister for Posts and Telegraphs), a man of transparent honesty, is showing gifts of statesmanship. M. Skobeleff (Minister for Labour) is frankly telling the workers of the necessity for modifying their excessive demands. The idea of energetic State interference is coming to the foreground as the only solution of the industrial crisis.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Morning Post," in a pessimistic despatch, dated June 22, says: Russia is still "speechifying," and things are steadily going from bad to worse. The Leninites denounce the coalition as useless, and demand a wholly Socialist Ministry.

Out of 18 members of the executive of the workmen's and soldiers' delegates only four are passing under their own names, of whom one is an Armenian, the others being a German, a Russian, and a Jew. The other 14 have all German names. To outsiders it seems as if the Government, by following the Tolstoyan policy of non-resistance to evil is establishing class warfare throughout Russia. When a body of armed anarchists in broad daylight recently captured a newspaper office, unarmed soldiers were sent to surround the building. The anarchists surrendered, but were allowed to retain their weapons, and were set at liberty without even their names being taken.

The first battalion of women soldiers will go to the front in a fortnight as an object lesson to the peacemongers. Most of the recruits are women and girls from the educated classes. Women responsible for the Amazonian "battalions of death" have issued an appeal to the nation, recalling the fact that every day the army is idle it costs Russia £5,000,000. "Pacifists," they declare, "are Judases who are selling Russia to the foe, and will soon learn that it is better to face ten German bayonets than one tigress mother of Russia. You make war without annexations and contributions, yet expect tribute from your own native towns. Until your bayonets overrun Wilhelm's throne you are cowards and traitors."

MORE "SECRET HISTORY."

AMERICA AND GERMANY.

The United States Committee of Public Information has issued a pamphlet explaining President Wilson's Note of last December, in which he asked the belligerents to state their war aims, and a simultaneous statement made by Mr. Lansing (Secretary of State), that the country was on the verge of war.

The pamphlet says that the United States Government had been informed that Germany did not intend to keep the pledge, given to America after the Sussex was torpedoed, that she would not sink merchantmen without warning. The German Peace Note plainly indicated that Germany would insist on such terms as would leave Central Europe under German domination, thus building up an Empire menacing the world, and enabling Germany to crush her adversaries. The United States learned that Germany intended a more intense and more ruthless use of submarines, and that she would not respect the rights of neutrals unless the neutrals influenced a peace favourable to Germany.

The refusal of Germany to state her peace terms was an evasion of President Wilson's request for her war aims, while the Entente answered the President's Note quite frankly.

ITALIAN MAKES GOOD.

A Rome message states:—Abbatemaggio, the informer, who gave evidence at Viterbo in the Camorra trial, was released at his own suggestion on condition that he was sent out on dangerous military service. During the Carso battle he took charge of a machine gun section, rallied the survivors, and held out for five days at an isolated post, though hotly attacked. The Duke d'Aosta personally congratulated and promoted Abbatemaggio for his bravery.

VAST PLOT AGAINST NORWAY.

GERMAN EXPLOSIVES.

LONDON, June 25.

The authorities in Christiania have discovered large depots of explosives and infernal machines, which are believed to have been sent from Germany. Some of the explosives are disguised as coal briquettes. It is suggested that these briquettes have been placed aboard ships, and explain the mysterious loss of Norwegian vessels.

Owing to the excitement created by the rumours having caused a panic on the Christiania Stock Exchange the Government issued a communique, which states that great quantities of explosives were seized in a private house. Large trunks from Germany filled with explosives were also seized at a railway station, and several foreigners were arrested. Full details are promised when the police have completed their investigations.

The "Tidens Tegn" states that the police have arrested three Finns and a German, Baron von Hautenfels.

The explosives are of the most dangerous kind, and total 1000 kilogrammes. Some are shaped like cigars and cigarettes. The Norwegian press is convinced that the briquettes have been responsible for the loss of many ships and human lives, and demand the severest punishment.

Special meetings of Parliament will be held in camera to discuss the discovery of a vast German plot against Norway's security. Many German agents have been arrested.

The explosives seized are of German manufacture. They reached Norway under cover of the diplomatic luggage belonging to a foreign State. The luggage was not examined.

Baron von Hautenfels pleads that the explosives were intended for Finland and not for sinking Norwegian vessels.

HOLLAND'S DILEMMA

BRITAIN OR GERMANY?

LONDON, June 25.

It is reported from Amsterdam that difficulty has arisen in connection with the potato crop in Holland.

Before new potatoes can be exported to Germany, the Dutch, in accordance with a promise, must supply 12,000 tons of old potatoes to England. These had already been loaded into barges, when the Dutch authorities announced that they proposed to send 25 per cent. to Germany. Angry crowds, learning this, feared a shortage of potatoes in Holland, and stormed twelve of the barges in Rotterdam Harbour.

Germany now threatens to cut off Holland's coal supplies if she does not receive potatoes. On the contrary, if the Dutch yield to pressure and break their agricultural agreement with England, the Allies will refuse to supply Holland with grain.

THE WAR CABINET.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that General Smuts will not attend the War Cabinet meetings when domestic policy is discussed, but he will be a member of the Inner Committee dealing with the war, which will consist of Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Curzon, Lord Milner, and himself. In order to economise time other Ministers will only attend when matters concerning their departments are considered.

AMERICAN FOOD.

NEW YORK, June 24.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Times" says that President Wilson has ordered the Secretary of State to create an Exports Control Board, which will include representatives of the departments of State, War, and the Navy, and the Food Administrator, for the purpose of regulating the export of certain commodities necessary for the welfare of the United States and the Allies. Grain, coal, and steel will probably be the most important commodities affected. All shipments will be licensed. It is stated that action will not be completed by cutting off any kind of exports to neutrals; but that the Government will be empowered to diminish exports to any country obtaining more than is required for its own consumption.

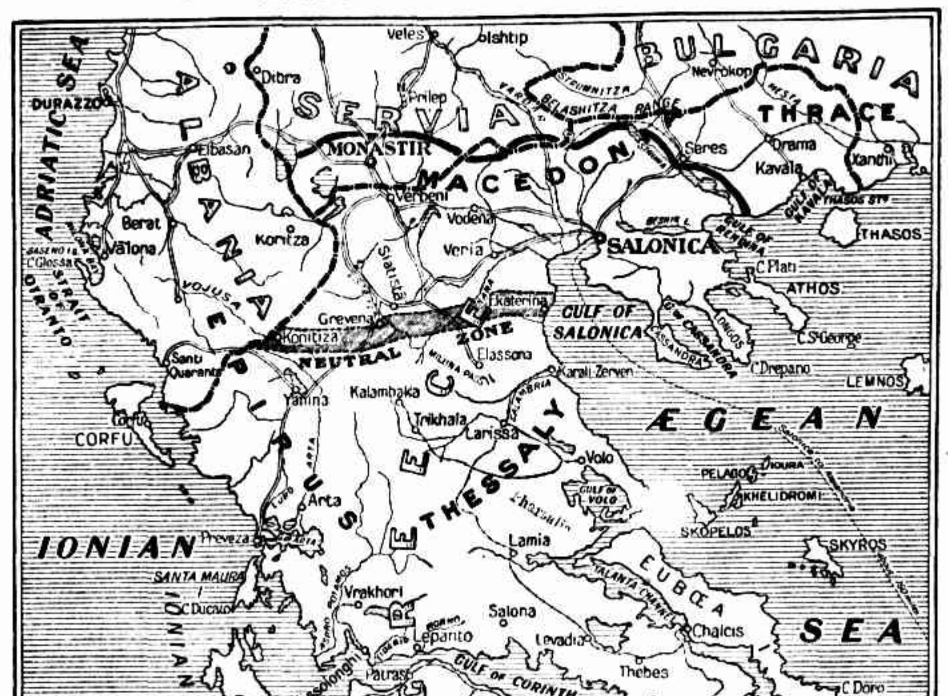

It is announced that 200 advanced aviation students can be turned out weekly after August 25. It is expected that there will be 1400 active flyers by September 8.

IRISH DELEGATION.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., one of the leaders of the Irish Nationalists, has arrived in New York, en route to Washington, where he will explain the Irish issues so far as they relate to America. He said: "The situation is somewhat confused. There is no settled preference for a hopeless insurrection." Mr. O'Connor said that England was more united than ever, and will fight to a finish.

Mr. Richard Hazelton, M.P., accompanies Mr. O'Connor.

OCCUPATION OF THESSALY.

The occupation of Thessaly by the French and British forces is reported to have been completed without hostility. Mr. Ward Price states that the British are encamped at Pharsalia, and that the Royalists have taken refuge in the belt southward of Lamia. The Italians first occupied Konitza and Yanina in the north-west. Later on the French occupied Elassona, in the north-east, and at the same time British and French troops landed on the Isthmus of Corinth, between Morea and Thessaly. The occupation of other towns followed without incident, except in Epirus, where the Greeks appear to have resented the Italian attempt to occupy Preveza, the seaport south by west of Yanina. French troops were landed at Preveza, however, shortly before the Italians arrived within sight of the town.

BRITISH MEET GERMANS

WELFARE OF PRISONERS.

Lord Newton (Assistant Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), Lieutenant-General Sir Herbert Belfield, (Director of Prisoners of War), and Sir Robert Younger (a Judge of the High Court) have arrived at the Hague to discuss with German delegates questions connected with prisoners of war, including camps reprisals, parcels exchange, and disabled men. A Dutch representative will preside at the conferences, which will open on June 25.

NEW AUSTRIAN PREMIER

A Zurich wireless message states that M. Seipler, who is a permanent official of the Ministry of Agriculture, has been appointed Austrian Premier in succession to Count Clam-Martinitz, who has resigned.

It is likely that the whole of the Cabinet will consist of similar officials, who are not attached to political parties.

AMERICAN ADMIRAL TAKES BRITISH COMMAND.

Rear-Admiral Sims, of the United States navy, who is in charge of the American destroyer flotillas in British waters, has temporarily taken over the Irish naval command. This is the first time in history that an American Admiral has commanded a British fleet.

FOR KILLING CHILDREN.

Captain Brandenburg, who commanded the German air raid on Britain on June 13 has received the Order of Merit.

ITALIAN TRAITORS.

"Lloyd's News" publishes the secret history and exposure of the espionage and conspiracy of Monsignor Gerlach, a Vatican official, who has been sentenced to imprisonment for life. The Italian Government was aware that most important documents in connection with Austrian espionage were concealed in a safe in a house in Vienna adjoining the German Consulate. The safe was protected by the most complete burglar traps, and poison gas could be released in the event of anyone found tampering with the safe. The Italian Government, in January, selected two of the most expert burglars from prisons, offering them their freedom and money if they secured the documents. It was duly announced that the burglars had escaped from prison. They reached Vienna by unknown means, and were equipped with the most complete burglary outfit, also with gas masks. The burglary was the fullest success. Early in April the Austrian Government merely announced that the safe had been burgled, and a large sum of money abstracted. A secret cypher wireless message from Vienna was immediately delivered to Gerlach, informing him that the documents had been abstracted. Gerlach quitted Rome forthwith. Members of the Italian secret service raided Gerlach's house the next day, and found documents revealing a network of Austro-German espionage and pro-enemy plots. Three hundred arrests were made, including many notables.

The evidence at the trial showed that all the accused transmitted military secrets to the Austrian espionage centre in Lucerne, Monsignor Gerlach sometimes abusing the Vatican diplomatic valise.

The newspaper "La Vittoria" received £4000 from Germany. The trial, which was held in camera, occupied 56 sessions, but the public were admitted to hear the reading of the sentence, which occupied two hours. Full details of the evidence and sentence will only be published after the war. The crowd in court was thrilled with indignation over the details of the deeds of the prisoners, and broke into howls of vituperation, forcing the prisoners to hide their faces. Pomarici was condemned to be shot through the back.

GENERAL SEELY.

Brigadier-General Seely, who was British Minister for War prior to August, 1914, has been accidentally wounded in France.

LIQUOR TRADE CONTROL

The Cabinet has decided in favour of the State purchase of the liquor trade, but the terms remain to be discussed. The idea of the Government at present is that there should be State control during the war, with prohibition and State purchase after the war.

State control will mean the immediate closing down of scores of breweries, and the extinction of thousands of licensed houses. Though the Cabinet has authorised the brewing of more beer, there will be no encroachment on food stocks. By reducing the alcoholic strength to 36 degrees, the output has been increased by 50 per cent. Standardised ale is retailed at fourpence per pint.

AUSTRALIAN WOMEN AND CONSCRIPTION.

LONDON, June 25.

Replying to Sir Almroth Wright's letter in the "Morning Post" on the women's vote in the Australian conscription referendum, Doctor Graham Little states that Sir Almroth Wright allowed his prejudices to run away with him when he ascribed the defeat of conscription in Australia to the blenching of women voters, who were reluctant to part with their menfolk. All the evidence, he says, shows that Sir Almroth Wright's pet muscular navvies and miners and the younger hot-heads of the Labour party defeated the referendum. The whole letter should be received with a shriek of mirth.

[Sir Almroth Wright, the distinguished physician, writing on women's suffrage questions, said:—"It is a matter of importance when the female population, as it is reported to have done in Australia, blenches and hangs back when it finds itself involved in the responsibility of sending husband, son, or lover to the war."]

RECORD MAIZE CROP.

MARYBOROUGH, Monday.

It is anticipated that a record maize crop from the Wide Bay district will be realised for this season, the bulk of the supplies coming from Kingaroy. The work of shipping to Brisbane, via Maryborough, has been in progress for the past fortnight, and up to date about 7500 bags have passed through the hands of forwarding agents for Melbourne and Sydney. This is equal to 22,500 bushels. It is considered in authoritative circles that harvesting will continue at this rate for probably another three months.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEAL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Leave to appeal to the Privy Council was granted to-day by the State Full Court in the matter of the arbitration proceedings between the Melbourne Tramway and Omnibus Company, Ltd., and the Melbourne Tramway Board.

WAR NOTES.

LULL IN MILITARY OPERATIONS.

The communiques appearing this morning reveal a general lull in military operations on practically all fronts. Russia has nothing to add to the minor moves reported from Galicia, Western Armenia, and Western Persia during the week-end. Italy has apparently settled down again for the time being, after her brief but effective attack on the Asiago Plateau. Apparently we cannot expect to hear much from Mesopotamia and Palestine at present, and if General Sarrail has any offensive plans for this year in Macedonia they will probably depend upon the future actions of the Russo-Roumanian armies to the northward. On the Western front the British have only been concerned with raids and aerial combats. The French, however, claim to have recaptured the greater portion of the salient which the enemy drove into their line during his recent severe attacks near Vauxaillon, south-west of Laon. The heavy bombardments farther eastward along the heights above the Aisne suggest that the French have not yet experienced the last of these attacks to which their line in this region has recently been subjected. One item of news from the Western front this morning which should be noted is the appearance right up near the extreme left of the Allied line of British troops. We are not told the strength of these troops who have appeared amongst the sand dunes above Nieuport, but it is possible that their presence might account for the artillery bombardment reported on this sector recently.

INTRIGUES AND PLOTS.

To-day's cabled messages contain some unquestionable proofs of the extent to which the Central Powers rely upon intrigues and plots in connection with the conduct of the war. The particulars regarding the Gerlach case, although reminiscent of sensational fiction, reveal an Austrian plot of the type which we might reasonably expect one belligerent to institute against another in time of war. Distasteful as the work of spying must appear to all civilised peoples, it is nevertheless a necessary evil in time of war. This being the case, it is not difficult to understand Austria's desire to learn the Italian military secrets, or her alacrity to take advantage of the methods employed in obtaining those secrets. Spying and plotting are by no means confined to Austria, but in most civilised countries there is a recognised limit to the work of secret agents. Germany admits of no such limit, and the intrigues and plots which she fomented in the United States long before President Wilson had even hinted at a break with Germany, showed that she was prepared to use against a neutral the same weapons which she would apply to an enemy. The latest disclosure of her extensive plots against Norway is another instance of her absolute contempt for neutrals. We have long ceased to wonder at her total disregard for their rights at sea, and, in this respect, Norway has lost a greater proportion of her shipping than any other neutral. As the "New York Times" recently pointed out, she has taken this infringement of her rights very mildly. The excitement which the latest outrage has caused in Christiania has prompted the Government to make an official announcement on the subject, and, as there is no doubt about the accuracy of the revelations, it will be interesting to see whether the people of Norway will be satisfied with another mild protest to Germany.

"THINGS CAN GO MUCH FURTHER."

After reading the particulars of the latest German plot to place explosives on Norwegian vessels while berthed alongside Norwegian wharfs, one is inclined to ask whether there is any limit to German ruthlessness, or whether we are to hear of further startling outrages in future. Mr. Hilaire Belloc, writing in "Land and Water" of April 5 regarding Germany's present policy, thinks that she can go much further. "This successive breaking down of military conventions," he writes, "is still in progress. It has not reached its limit, and may continue indefinitely. At the beginning of the present submarine campaign not a few of our newspapers thought the enemy had already reached the limits of all possible action. . . . . . As a matter of fact, things can go much further. We may have the poisoning of water supplies at home by agents within the belligerent countries, the spreading of diseases among animals and men by other methods, private assassination, the massacre of prisoners, etc., etc." The writer believes that the enemy's determination to carry ruthlessness still further in future must increase our determination to meet the danger in the only way it can be met, and that "the only agent for recovering civilised practice is a complete victory." The making of peace upon terms which would leave Germany an independent State would mean the end of Great Britain's peculiar position and power. "Not only the present enemy," adds Mr. Belloc, "but any potential enemy in the future, has, upon these precedents, the power to strike mortal blows against a highly populated industrial island State, controlling distant dependencies, and allied with distant dominions. It can act against such a State in a fashion quite separate from the corresponding power which can be exercised against a continental State . . . . The issue is quite clear. The business must be carried to its very end with the full consciousness of that end and the determination to reach it, or, in the alternative, all the way in which we have lived, all that by which we have lived, and in particular the sheltered conditions which permit certain academic eccentricities like 'pacificism' to flourish will be gone for good and all."

THE GERLACH CASE.

The plot in which Monsignor Gerlach figures so prominently, and concerning which some interesting particulars appear this morning, has recently been attracting widespread attention on the Continent. The Rome correspondent of "Le Temps" supplied his paper with an interesting account of Gerlach's operations on April 14 last. In the course of his article the correspondent stated that the Italian censorship had previously prevented any reference being made to the affair, as they feared that certain accomplices who were still free might be placed on their guard, and that they would escape from the net which was being drawn closer and closer. A deputy of the Socialist-Interventionists, De Felice, eventually brought forward accusations in the full Chamber of Deputies with such success that it was considered futile to keep silence any longer, and the affair came before the military tribunal in Rome on April 12 last. De Felice reproached the Government for having allowed Monsignor Gerlach, a German prelate, to occupy a position of confidence about the Pope's own person, and who, in reality, was purely and simply under the protection of the Vatican. "Gerlach was the man," adds the correspondent, "who handled and administered the funds for German propaganda, and who was charged with the payment of spies, traitors, and certain journalists sold to German influence." De Felice blamed the Government for allowing Gerlach to escape; but "those," says the correspondent, "who know the delicate relations between the Vatican and the Government can conceal their astonishment at the special measures taken by the Italian police towards a prelate who was in fact one of the Pope's principal officials. To arrest straight away, without having given notice to the Pope, one of his attaches, would have been an act of open hostility which the Italian Government wished to avoid. It was thought that the best course was to warn the Pope, who, as soon as he knew the truth, would be the first to free the soil of Italy of so undesirable a person, and that, in fact, is what happened. As soon as Benedict the Fifteenth knew beyond doubt of the miserable trade which was carried on in the sacred palace, and under the protection of the Holy See, by a prelate who was a spy and a corrupter of others, the Pope was moved to indignation, and the young prelate, who before had shared the delights of the salons of neutrals, was compelled, by order of the Holy Father, to flee as quickly as possible, and without having had time to say good-bye to his friends."

LATE WAR NEWS.

BRITISH FRONT.

LONDON, June 25.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his report issued at 1.35 p.m. to-day, says:—

We raided a number of points successfully. We entered trenches at Epehy, Bullecourt, Roeux, Loos, and Hooge, killing many and making several prisoners.

We remained for two hours in trenches eastward of Vermelles, blowing up dug-outs, inflicting casualties, and taking 15 prisoners.

We carried out successful minor operations south-westward of Lens, and north-westward of Warneton, gaining ground and taking prisoners.

RECRUITING.

DIRECTOR-GENERAL'S COMMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Director-General of Recruiting (Mr. Mackinnon, M.L.A.), in the course of a speech at the unveiling of a roll of honour board, said that Australia had done marvellously well under the voluntary system, but a fresh effort was needed, and it could only succeed by the help of employers and employed until they were in the position to say that every man who ought to go had gone. There was need for a sustained effort, and many employers were not encouraging men to go.

SPORTSMEN'S UNIT.

The barometer of enlistments in the second sportsmen's reinforcement unit showed last night that nine men had been accepted and 151 were still wanted. The following list shows the number of men asked for from each branch of sport, and the number accepted:—General athletes, 15 wanted, 2 accepted; boxers, 15 wanted, 2 accepted; bowlers, 10 wanted, none accepted; baseballers, 10 wanted, none accepted; cricketers, 15 wanted, 1 accepted; footballers, 45 wanted, 3 accepted; golfers, 10 wanted, none accepted; surfers and swimmers, 15 wanted, 1 accepted; sailing and rowing clubs, 15 wanted, none accepted; tennis players, 15 wanted, none accepted.

The organisers hope to rouse some friendly rivalry among the various branches of sport as to which will supply its quota first. Figures have been supplied them showing in an approximate way the branches of sport which have contributed the largest number of men, and they have based their percentages required on these figures.

IN OTHER STATES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In Victoria to-day 36 men volunteered for active service and 16 were accepted.

In Victoria last week 230 recruits were obtained as against 246 in the preceding week.

On Saturday evening Mr. M. Schlegel, of the Union Steamship Company, was entertained at a farewell dinner by the members of his staff at Baumann's Cafe, prior to his entering the artillery section of the A.I.F. Mr. J. Smith presided, and on behalf of those present, Mr. C. Cummings presented to Mr. Schlegel a gold wristlet watch and a pocket wallet.

"PROFITEERING" IN MEAT.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Interviewed in connection with the cable message to-day regarding the prices charged for Australasian meat in England, Mr. J. A. M. Elder, managing director of John Cooke and Co. Ptry., Ltd., said that it had been a matter of more or less common knowledge that "profiteering" had been practised almost since the commencement of the war.

Continuing, Mr. Elder said: "The prices at which the local and imported meats are now being sold in England are truly astonishing. With such 'profiteering' the Australian exporter, as far as I am aware, is in no way concerned. All Australian meat is sold to the British Government on an f.o.b. basis. It reaches England at a cost to the Government of something in the neighbourhood of 7d a pound for beef and mutton, and about 8d per lb for lamb. All the Australasian beef is used for army purposes. The great bulk of her mutton is [illegible] similarly, but some of it is released for civil consumption. All her lamb, too, is released in this way, and these particular quantities are sold to distributers at prices fixed by the Government, which have almost consistently been several pence a pound below the value of similar foreign meat on the British market. Practically the whole of the foreign chilled beef, mutton, and lamb which reaches England (besides a considerable proportion of the meat from South Africa and Canada) is entirely free of Government control, and is being sold in the United Kingdom precisely in the same manner as before the war. The proportion which this 'civil' meat of ours bears to the foreign 'civil' meat is negligible, and represents, perhaps, [illegible] more than two or three per cent. of all 'civil' meat consumed in the United Kingdom.

"The home Government is entirely responsible for this state of affairs in the old country. The prices of foreign meat ought to be fixed on an equivalent level of the cost to the British Government of the British-owned article from Australia, New Zealand, etc. I fear that home-grown meat is being manipulated by the same sinister influence that is 'profiteering' in imported meat. The price at which Australasian mutton and lamb can be bought from the Government should enable it to be retailed to the consumer at a price in the neighbourhood of 1/ per lb, and show a fair return of profit to the distributer."

ANTI-SHOUTING CAMPAIGN.

The anti-shouting petition to be presented to the Prime Minister is nearing completion. Already 95,000 names have been recorded, and it is expected that to-day's post will bring a fresh batch to be added to the number.

The campaign may rightly be described as a quick one. It was inaugurated on May 16, under the auspices of the National Council of Women, and the sub-committee drawn from its members has laboured heart and soul to make the effort a success. Yesterday a small band of women at the headquarters, Stanway House, King-street, were cutting and pasting the final lists of names in order to form two long rolls for convenience in presenting. Mrs. Langer Owen, the president of the sub-committee, was most enthusiastic on the subject. "I have been astonished," she said, "at the different classes of people who have been interested. We seem to have touched every grade of society, and more especially the labouring people. At one stand in Martin-place it was sometimes quite pathetic to see the eagerness with which the petitions were almost snatched from us to sign. Many men said they had always been hard drinkers, and wished shouting had been abolished 40 years ago. It would have been greatly to their advantage." Asked whether the preponderance of names were women's or men's, Mrs. Owen was unable to say, but a glance down the long lists showed that the men had taken a very keen interest in the campaign, and in some cases the petitions were remarkable for the signatures of the latter. Hundreds of soldiers signed readily. Indeed, the officers from the various camps could not speak too highly of the movement which had been started in the interests of the out-going and home-coming men in khaki.

The movement has been essentially a people's one. It has been characterised by immense enthusiasm, and few rebuffs were met with. Not only did men and women sign their own names, but took away petitions to be filled in. Mrs. Owen is immensely gratified at the success of the whole campaign. It will fall to her lot to present the petition, and the introductory words will be spoken by Lady M'Millan. The expenses of organising have practically resolved themselves into paper and printing.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION ACT.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

A meeting held yesterday under the auspices of the A.M.A. decided to request the Government to place miner's complaint, and all other diseases incidental to a miner's calling, in the schedule of industrial diseases provided for under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

RETURNED SOLDIER'S DEATH.

FREMANTLE, Monday.

William G. Ferry, a returned soldier, of Footscray, was found dead this morning in a railway guard's van. He and a mate, Alexander McKenzie, went to sleep in the van on the previous evening, on account of the late hour at which they returned from Perth. Ferry was found dead this morning, and the body was removed to the base hospital. An inquest will be held.

AUSTRALIA'S DUTY.

OUR SOLDIERS' EXAMPLE.

The duty owed by Australia to the men who have gone to the front, and the value of the example of self-sacrifice and patriotism set by the latter, were emphasised by speakers at the public unveiling of a roll of honour at the Annandale Town Hall yesterday. Nearly 3000 people were present at the function, and the speakers included the Minister for the Navy (Mr. Cook), the Attorney-General (Mr. D. R. Hall), the Consul-General for France (M. Chayet), the United States Consul-General (Mr. J. I. Brittain), Mr. A. Sinclair, M.L.C., Mr. W. J. O'Brien, M.L.A., Senator Grant, and Mr. Arthur Griffith. The headquarters band from Liverpool was in attendance, and members of the Naval Comrades' Association formed a guard of honour.

The Mayor (Mr. Edward Hogan) stated that, while the population of Annandale was some 13,000, the names on the honour roll were already over 1000, and there were more to come.

MR. COOK ON PATRIOTISM.

Mr. Cook said the event was the most significant and important in the history of the municipality, relating as it did to a matter of life and death—to the preservation of all his hearers held dear. Mr. Cook traced the structure of patriotism, which began with love of one's personal home, and extended to pride in one's municipality, pride in the State to which one belonged, love of Australia, and finally the patriotism which regarded Australia as part of the great communion of nations which comprised the British Empire. Associated with the patriotism was another feeling, born of these tragic days—the feeling of relationship to those Allies who were fighting in the same cause, the feeling of duty and responsibility which we owed to them. "Under these flags," declared Mr. Cook, indicating the colours of the allied nations which decorated the front of the Town Hall, "we pledge ourselves anew to-day to fight this battle through with them to the end." (Applause.)

Mr. Cook went on to speak of the duty owing to those whose names were on the board—the men who were fighting or had fought and fallen while those at home enjoyed a security and peace possessed by hardly any other nation in the world. "What are we doing?" he asked. "Are we preparing to live when the war is over for the causes for which they died? That is the test of our patriotism in the long run. What is it costing us? What do we propose it shall cost us? What difference shall it make in our lives and characters? We honour the boys best when we are doing the work to which they have set their hands; when we are getting something of their spirit of patriotism. Are we getting any of that spirit into our own lives and hearts, I wonder? I saw a headline in the paper to-day on 'The Cost of Living.' What is the 'cost of living' out here in Australia? Do we reflect that the 'cost of living' here is being paid by those boys over yonder—paid to the full in the sacrifice of their lives, in meeting danger day by day, and braving it only as brave men can do? It is they who are showing us what the cost of living under our civilised conditions is. All our interests are at stake to-day. All our institutions, founded on liberty and freedom, are at stake. We must take care that no autocratic tyrant from another country interferes in the slightest degree with our free institutions here." Mr. Cook urged his hearers to take the lesson of self-sacrifice into their lives. It would sanctify their relationships with their fellow men, and would be the best tribute of all to those who fought for them. (Applause.)

FRENCH CONSUL'S APPEAL.

The French Consul paid a tribute to the men who, in a country, which, unlike France, had no compulsory service, freely volunteered in defence of their motherland. Those brave boys had realised that, if the motherland was crushed by Germany, Australia, too, would be crushed. If the Allies were crushed by Germany there would be no more British navy. The Germans would take this country, and instead of enjoying freedom, the Australians would be treated like slaves. "I am sure you all realise the seriousness of the situation," said M. Chayet. "We are full of hope. Our boys and your boys are doing very well, but we have to face an enemy who will fight to the last man and the last penny. Every man who is able to go, ought, in my opinion, to go to the colours. There can never be too many men at the front. Do not forget it. The more boys you send to the front the fewer you will lose." (Applause.)

AMERICA'S ENTRY.

The American Consul said: "There is no greater service you can render your country than voluntarily to tender your service on its behalf in an hour of danger. When the Empire's call came the young men of Australia asked no questions, but hastened to respond to the call of duty. Many of those who responded to that call have sealed their devotion to the principles of democracy with their lives, which is the highest type of patriotism. I am proud that the nation which I have the honour to represent is leaving no stone unturned to make its entry into this world-war on behalf of humanity and justice as effective as possible. I feel sure that the soldiers of the United States will give as good an account of their stewardship on the battle-fields of France as they did at Concord and Lexington, when fighting for freedom and democracy. It is for the male citizens of those countries that love the principles of freedom and democracy to determine this war, and to decide whether those principles shall survive."

DEATH BEFORE DISHONOUR.

Mr. Hall doubted whether what the soldiers were doing was appreciated as much now as it would be in the days to come. The soldiers who had offered their lives for the cause of civilisation had learn t that there were worse things than death. The names of those who preferred death to cowardice and dishonour would long endure. (Applause.)

Mr. O'Brien, M.L.A., said the occasion was one on which all could meet on common ground. The honour roll was a tribute to the men who had gone to the war, but the best way of repaying them was by providing for those who came back and caring for the dependents of the fallen. Much had been done in this direction, but not all that ought to be done. He concluded:—"I only hope the time is not far distant when the world will come to reason again and this pitiful and unjustified sacrifice of human life will come to an end."

Mr. Sinclair, M.L.C., said the problem confronting them to-day was to send more men to the front. He agreed with the Consul for France that every able-bodied man ought to go. All they loved as free men was at stake.

THE EMPIRE'S TRUST.

COST OF THE WAR TO AUSTRALIA.

The Heroes' Honour Day celebrations at Annandale in connection with the Prince of Wales' Birthday were continued in the evening, when a dinner to returned soldiers was given under the auspices of the Win-the-War League. The Mayor (Alderman Hogan) presided.

The Minister for the Navy (Mr. Cook) responded to the toast of "Our Empire and Allies," which was proposed by Mr. Sinclair, M.L.C. Mr. Cook said they all hoped to live long enough to see the Prince of Wales, whose birthday they celebrated, take his place on the throne of England. They hoped, however, that this would be a long time hence. Whoever else was dissatisfied with the form of government in Britain, we who lived under British rule ought not to be dissatisfied. Let those who were quit and go somewhere else. Our Empire was the biggest in the world, and it was good as well as great. It had an area of 11 million square miles, to which a million had been added in this war. They had been compelled to add this in self-defence, but now they had got it, in the Pacific, he hoped they would be able to keep it. (Applause.) The British flag was flying over every sea, and jutting out on practically every headland on the face of the globe to-day, yet what appealed to the speaker more than anything else was the sense of responsibility and trusteeship which had always been associated with the privileges they enjoyed. Britain more than any other nation had realised that empire was a mighty engine for good. What other nation, asked Mr. Cook, would have used her naval predominance for peace as Britain had done for 100 years? The Germans might talk of freedom of the seas; but when had the seas been freer than now? The seas were freest when the British navy was biggest and strongest. (Applause.) The Germans, with a navy half as big, had thought they could lick the world, and started out to do it. They knew better now. (Laughter.) Some years ago people had said that Britain ought to fight the German navy at once, before it got too big. But such was Britain's sense of the trusteeship of her power that she preferred to respect other people's liberty even though it was shaping an engine to threaten her own. So Britain allowed other nations to develop armies and navies, and let them alone. But when another nation threatened her liberty it was time to act. Now it was Australia's part to do everything she could to help. Every bit of our strength and every ounce of our resources were necessary to be pressed into the scale in order for the Empire to be saved.

He urged every one who could go to the front to make the sacrifice, and, in conclusion, expressed the hope that the Empire, instead of being bankrupt, as the pessimists predicted, would rise regenerated and purified. In this war the revival of the British spirit, which it had occasioned was worth the sacrifice. (Applause.)

The Attorney-General (Mr. D. R. Hall), in responding to the toast of Parliament, spoke of the problems that would face the Federal Government after the war. If the war ended to-morrow the five million people in Australia would have to raise four and a half millions a year as interest on borrowed money, quite apart from the cost of providing for returned soldiers and dependents. If the war ended to-morrow the country would have to raise £6,000,000 a year, and if it lasted another year or two they would have to meet an annual interest bill of £10,000,000, besides providing something to pay off the principal. If Parliament solved the problem satisfactorily Australia would have every reason to be proud of it.

Senator Grant said that the war would probably last seven years, but he was not one of those who wanted peace at any price. He wanted to see Belgium restored, and Alsace and Lorraine given back to France. He hoped that no peace of any kind would be "patched up," because he felt certain that in such a case Germany would only take advantage of it to recuperate and pounce upon us on another occasion. (Applause.)

A concert concluded the evening's entertainment.

CARRIAGE OF MAILS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The award of the Interstate Commission in the arbitration case submitted to it regarding the amount payable by the Postal Department to the States for the carriage of mails was given to-day. The rate for particulars was adopted as the basis for future payments. Mr. Swinburne, who delivered the judgment of the majority of the commission, said the parties were agreed that there was no obligation to take over the system of paying for the carriage of mails which was in existence when Federation was formed. At the rate of 4d a gross ton mile payments to the railways of Australia would be £140,000, as against £364,000 paid last year. When the Commonwealth was formed the payment to the State railways by the State Governments was £235,000, and the increase from that amount to £364,000 was owing to the increase in the quantity of mail matter. With regard to parcel rates in Australia, each railway department fixed its rates for itself. In Victoria, it was stated by the Commissioners that the mails were being carried at a much lower rate than the particulars rate.

The chairman (Mr. Piddington), in a dissenting judgment, stated that the particulars rates were fixed by the States without consultation with any other body. To fix rates on this basis meant that mails were to be regarded as ordinary consignments and not as a public utility. To decide on that mode of payment would be to confer on the States the power of taxing the Commonwealth, because it was immaterial whether the States taxed mails at so much a ton or by increasing the particulars rates. In his opinion, the rates should be fixed on the average cost of the carriage of all kinds of goods. He expressed the opinion the railways had been making a profit of about £200,000 yearly under the old agreement.

The award is as follows:—That the annual sum to be paid by the Postmasters-General to the principal railway officials of each of the States for the carriage of mails shall be—(1) subject to the deduction hereinafter specified, the scheduled State railway rates for the carriage of prepaid parcels shall be the rates and charges for the carriage of mails and postal matter; (2) periodical test weighing shall be carried out as hitherto, but for the purposes of this test mails carried daily from one place to another shall be weighed in bulk, be treated as one parcel, and be charged for accordingly; (3) a deduction of 58 per cent. shall be made from the scheduled State railway rates for the carriage of prepaid parcels on account of lesser services rendered by the railways in connection with mails, and for other reasons. This award shall stand for one year.

MOUNT LYELL MINES.

LAUNCESTON, Monday.

With a better labour supply, the outputs from both North Lyell and Mount Lyell mines are so far increasing that the management is hopeful that a third furnace will be in commission shortly. Operations at the 1200ft level at the North Lyell are temporarily suspended, but very rich ore continues to be won from No. 49 stope at the 1100ft level, and other stopes at this level are yielding above the average grade. A large tonnage of fair-grade ore is being won from No. 40 stope at the 1000ft level, while the immense ore body in the north-west portion of the workings is maintaining its usual satisfactory value. Fair progress is being made with the Crown Lyell shaft, the rise for which is up about 28ft, with a progress of about 7ft weekly. Very good ore continues to be met with in the north drive from the 925ft level working to connect with the Crown Lyell shaft, the results of this exploratory work demonstrating beyond doubt that there is an unbroken continuity of average-grade ore for 150ft between the 1000ft and 850ft levels, with an ore body of extensive area.

DEATH OF MR. ALEXANDER MACPHERSON.

WAGGA, Monday.

After an illness of several months, Mr. Alexander Macpherson died at his residence, Umbango station. Mr. Macpherson for over 40 years was closely associated with the development of the country, and was widely known for his intimate knowledge of the land laws of the State. Born in 1845 he received early education at the Sydney Grammar School. Joining the Public Service he entered the survey branch of the Lands Department. For several years he was associated with a considerable amount of early survey work. Later, Mr. Macpherson acquired Umbango station, and for the past forty years devoted himself to pastoral pursuits. For several years he was a member of the Wagga Land Board, and assisted in the enormous amount of work involved in the appraisement of land values in the Coolamon, Ganmain, and Wagga districts.

MACQUARIE SEAT.

LITHGOW, Monday.

Mr. E. S. Carr, who has represented Macquarie in the Federal Parliament for many years, and who was beaten by nine votes at the recent election, denies that he is a likely Nationalist candidate for the Macquarie State seat. Mr. Carr adds: "I am still contesting the Macquarie Federal seat." It is understood that Mr. Carr is applying for a High Court review of a number of the disputed votes, and his supporters are still hopeful of his ultimate success.

LATE COMMERCIAL.

LAUNCESTON, Monday.

The steamer Karitane left Devonport for Sydney this afternoon with 10,644 bags of potatoes, 1753 bags of turnips, 536 bags of oats, 276 bags of chaff, 176 bags of peas, and 146 cases of apples. Of the potatoes 1174 bags are for Queensland.

NURSES' TRAINING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—If the fourth year of nurse training is required to teach them dispensing it would be a public advantage if omitted. My fifty-three years' experience as apprentice, assistant, and master pharmacist is sufficient guarantee to give some weight to my opinion, although I have practically retired from active business. Of what service to nurses, as nurses, is this dangerous, small amount of dispensing knowledge? If they, during any periods not occupied by the onerous duties of hospital nursing, can, by lesson and study, obtain sufficient ability to act as dispensers, why on earth do any pharmacy students, who have every opportunity of becoming competent and safe dispensers, fail in their exams? With due deference to the nurse's devotion, etc., to her profession, and with grateful homage to the thousands who have proved themselves worthy of our lasting honour and admiration, let us get down to the fact that the majority have become nurses with a view to pecuniary recompense. Some of them, with this matter of dispensing, a nurse's uniform, a book such as "Home Physician," and a supply of drugs obtained at wholesale, are, by the ignorant, and by some who should have more sense, called in to diagnose, prescribe, dispense, sell medicines, and nurse the sick. If the case is favourable, well and good; if otherwise, whether from maltreatment or other causes, the nurse has sufficient knowledge to obtain medical advice. But, Sir, remember that all the time, no matter what happens, there has not been, nor will be, any other supervision of the case. Who knows anything about the damage done? For safety of the community it is rightly insisted on that pharmacists shall have thorough theoretical and practical knowledge of dispensing. The utility of the nurse as dispenser is a grave menace to the public, and nurses could be much better employed in duties pertaining to their profession.

I am, etc.,
JOHN E. ELLIOTT.

DARWIN SEAT.

LABOUR CANDIDATE AND CONSCRIPTION.

HOBART, Monday.

Lieut. Hurst, Labour candidate for Darwin Federal seat, addressed a meeting of the electors at Queenstown on Saturday night. Mr. Tudor, leader of the Federal Opposition, spoke in support of Lieut. Hurst's candidature. In view of the statement made by Mr. Hurst that Mr. Blakely, member for the Darling was coming across from the mainland to support his candidature, the following telegram has been sent on behalf of the Waratah branch of the Labour Federation to Mr. Lambert, president of the New South Wales Political Labour League:—"Lieut. Hurst, Labour candidate for Darwin, advocated conscription at the referendum. He has publicly stated that Mr. Blakely is coming to Tasmania to support him. In view of the decision of the New South Wales Labour conference re those who supported conscription, is this statement re Mr. Blakely correct? Mr. Tudor is here advocating Lieut. Hurst's candidature."

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) addressed a large meeting of the Darwin electors at Ulverstone on Saturday night in support of Mr. Spence's candidature.

ITALIAN OPERA.

The holiday audience which assembled for "Ernani" at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon included a great many leading musicians and amateurs, the special attraction doubtless being the nobly dramatic character of the scene in the catacombs. The gloomy opening in a beautiful theme for 'cello and bass reeds, and the stately soliloquy for Don Carlos, finely sung by Signor Scamuzzi, was followed by the choral entrance of the conspirators, and a sombre strain for Silva—Signor Cacialli's best part. The thrilling situation in which the newly-elected Emperor magnanimously celebrated the opening of a new reign by uniting Ernani with Elvira completely changed the character of the music. The Italian choristers burst into fortissimo festival-music with the full orchestra rising and falling under Signor Giovanni Gonsalez' baton as the different principals came in. Signorina De Revers (Elvira), and Signor Dagradi (Ernani) admirably sustained the emotional excitement, with Signor Scamuzzi as the central figure in one of the finest ensembles that Verdi has composed. The artists were called and recalled again and again, until, after some hesitation on the part of a laggard chorus, the music was repeated.

In the evening there was another large audience to hear Signorina Gonsalez in "Lucia." This is a prima donna's opera, and the lyric soprano displayed all her accustomed purity of vocal tone and pathetic charm of expression in the "Mad Scene," the passages with the flute being perfectly balanced. The famous Sestette was effectively rendered by the soprano, Signori Capelli (Edgardo), Belloni (Enrico), Cacialli (Raimondo), Barontini (Arturo), and Signor Beloni, and chorus. The six fateful chords with brass leading to the seventh accentuated by the clash of cymbals achieved all the wonted "thrill," and the masterpiece was encored amidst overwhelming enthusiasm.

This evening "Cavalleria" and "Pagliacci" will be staged, the latter work bringing forward Signor Balboni and Signorina Visoni.

CASUALTIES.

George Howell, aged 77, an inmate of the Long Bay Penitentiary, died at the South Coast Hospital early yesterday morning. Deceased was in prison awaiting his trial on a charge. On Saturday morning he was taken ill and removed to the hospital.

Elizabeth Jane Massey, aged 41, collapsed suddenly and died at her residence, Wiggins-street, Botany, early yesterday morning. The deceased was in the habit of taking chlorodyne as a cure for colds, and it is thought that she may have accidentally taken an overdose.

GRAFTON.—The body of Charles Andersen, a Russian resident of South Grafton, was found in the river on Friday. Deceased, who was 17 years of age, was missing for a week. He had been very despondent of late.

LITHGOW.—Bernard Mullins, of Triangle Flat, dropped dead early on Saturday morning. He has left a widow and a large family of young children. It is only a couple of years ago that a younger brother died in a similar manner.

SOLDIER'S COTTAGE.

MR. COOK AT CARLINGFORD.

Carlingford was en fete yesterday, when a cottage erected by voluntary workers was handed over to Mrs. Taylor (wife of Private Taylor, who has been wounded and is now on his way from the front) by Mrs. W. A. Forsyth, wife of the president of the local branch of the Voluntary Workers' Association.

The Minister for the Navy (Mr. Joseph Cook), who was present, took part in a procession from the railway station to the cottage.

Mr. Thacker (secretary) mentioned that the cost of the building was between £240 and £250. It had been valued at £450. Some persons in the district, he said, had declared that they did not believe in what the Voluntary Workers' Association was doing, as such work should be undertaken by the Government.

Mr. Philip Hockley announced that he would give a block of land for another soldier's cottage. Mr. Forsyth gave the block on which Mrs. Taylor's residence is erected.

Mr. Cook said that they should get it out of their heads that the voluntary workers were doing something instead of the Government. "You are doing nothing of the kind," he continued. "You are doing this in addition to what the Government will feel it its duty to do. (Applause.) Do not let anybody run away with the idea that the Government is sheltering behind this association. It is doing nothing of the kind. The Government will spend £30,000,000 or £40,000,000 on repatriating our soldiers. Anything that you do in the way of providing homes will be an effort in addition to what the Government will do in connection with the repatriation scheme. The people who offer this criticism are simply ignorant of the real facts. Some people find excuses because they don't want to render any help. Any man who says such things does not know what he is talking about." (Applause.) Mr. Cook went on to say that Mr George Fitzpatrick, the organising secretary of the Voluntary Workers' Association, had rendered yeoman service. The Voluntary Workers' Association—and they should not forget Dr. Arthur, M.L.A.—stepped into the breach before the Government was ready. They had already dotted various districts with evidences of love—such as the beautiful little home they had just handed over—for the boys at the front. He hoped they would continue their good work.

The Minister, continuing, said it was hardly necessary to remind those present that as a people we were all in the war, and perhaps before we were out of it many more of our brave lads would be in it. At the present time it looked very much as if that would be the case. Very many sacrifices would have to be made, and no matter how long it took, the task would have to be accomplished. Everything was at stake just now, and everything depended on the assistance we could render. (Applause.) Never were such devilish works let loose among the people of the world as we had seen in recent years on the part of the German Empire.

HEAVY RAINFALL IN THE CITY.

The rainfall registered in Sydney yesterday morning amounted to 254 points, and is the heaviest downpour in the city recorded since April 11 of this year. The rain fell lightly at intervals during Sunday, and became heavy after midnight, 200 points being recorded between then and 6 a.m. yesterday.

The downpour in the city is remarkable, not being even nearly approached by the rainfall elsewhere. At Parramatta the showers consisted of less than half the Sydney amount; registrations of over one inch occurred at only a few places elsewhere (chiefly on the Hunter and Manning coast), and the rainstorm, as a whole, affected less than one-quarter of the State, being confined to scattered areas in the south-eastern districts.

In the Hunter and Manning division the rain was light to moderately heavy, and a maximum fall of 158 points was recorded at Newcastle. In the other country districts the largest amounts were 68 points at Jervis Bay (South Coast), 59 points at Lawson (central tablelands), and 27 points at Cootamundra (south-west slopes).

COASTAL REPORTS AT 6 P.M.

Clarence Heads, south, moderate, cloudy, sea moderate; Newcastle, south, moderate, misty, sea slight; Kiama, south, strong, raining, sea rough, stand-off signals; Crookhaven Heads, south-west, fresh, cloudy, sea moderate; Jervis Bay, south, fresh, thick, misty rain, sea rough; Eden, south, cloudy, misty, sea moderate; Green Cape, south, cloudy, misty, sea moderate; Gabo Island, south, light, gloomy, misty, showery, sea moderate; Adelaide, NE, fine; Melbourne, calm, cloudy; Hobart, calm, cloudy; Brisbane, south-west, cloudy; Perth, not to hand; Sydney, WSW, dull, raining.

NEWINGTON'S WAR RECORD

The honour roll of Newington College contains 430 names of those who have actually enlisted. Four more have gone to England to serve as munition workers, and 18 have been engaged on home service, making a total so far as can be ascertained, of 452. Thirty-five have died either in action or as a result of wounds, one has been drowned, four are missing, and one is known to be a prisoner of war.

Among the dead are several of exceptional promise. Major Campbell was killed early in the war, Major Moffat Reid was a gallant Light Horse officer. Captain D. S. Freeman was a mining engineer. Captain H. K. Meek, Captain Jekyll, Sergt. Murray, Corp. Holliday were, as boys, at the top of the school, and had distinguished school careers, while Lieut. V. S. Warry, Sergt. Lovett, Trooper Jeffrey, and Trooper Pountney were distinguished athletes. Seventeen have been mentioned in despatches. Of these, two have won the D.S.O., seven the Military Cross, three the D.C.M., two the M.M. It is noteworthy that the two with the D.S.O., Colonel Mackay and Captain Petersen, were amongst the most dashing footballers of their day. The same remark applies to the M.Cs., Captain Millner, Captain J. M'Donald, Lieuts. H. Moffatt, C. R. Wise, and O. H. Woodward.

The contribution of doctors has been large, and of these two, Captain T. E. Parker and Captain H. J. Orr have been mentioned in despatches. Fine service has been rendered by all, while Major W. M. A. Fletcher is reported to have had an extraordinary popularity in the hospital where he has served. Several have served as chaplains—Revs. E. M. Boyer, D. D. Hunter, A. Meek, V. W. Thompson (naval), and W. C. Francis. Lieutenant C. K. Nelson, who enlisted in England, was one of the most distinguished schoolboys and University students of his time; in spite of wounds he still serves. In the early stages of the war many enlisted in the Light Horse. Latterly the Artillery has claimed some of the best, no one of these being better known than Gunner J. M. Taylor, whose exploits with the bat for his school, and then for the State, were the talk of his time.

Amongst those engaged in service at home are some leading surgeons, including Sir Herbert Maitland, Dr. Perkins, Dr. George Abbott, and Dr. C. H. Lawes, for a long time P.M.O. in military camps. The headmaster, Rev. C. J. Prescott, has been acting senior chaplain for his Church almost from the beginning of the war. The work of Mr. H. E. Budden, as War Chest Commissioner, is so well known to the public that it needs no mention here.

It is interesting to take up old photographs of teams or of prefects to see how in many cases there is scarcely one that has not enlisted; and those who have not are in many instances medical students, who will enlist as soon as they are qualified as practitioners. One of these groups contains nine boys. Of these three have been killed, three are now serving, and one is a medical student. Of the 1915 cricket eleven two are still at school and two at the University; the rest have enlisted. Of the 1912 premier football fifteen three have been killed, one is in the Medical School, and the rest are serving. The centre forward of the 1917 team has just enlisted, while the vast majority of the later prefects and scholarship holders have answered the call.

FATAL COLLISION.

A shocking accident occurred in William-street at 10.15 last night, resulting in the death of a woman and the destruction of a motor car and damage to a tram.

According to the police report, Miss Kathleen Frances Whiteley, aged 36 years, who resided at 162 Forbes-street, city, was crossing William-street at its junction with Forbes-street, towards her home. A taxi-cab, driven by Bertram Lovegrove, of Randwick, was proceeding up William-street at the usual pace when it struck Miss Whiteley. The impact is said to have locked the steering gear, and on the brakes being applied suddenly the car skidded on to the down tram line and came into collision with a tram car which was coming to the city. The unfortunate woman was dragged along in front of the taxi-cab and received the full force of the collision with the tram. She was thrown partly under the tram, which passed over one of her legs, severing it at the knee. In addition other terrible injuries were inflicted. Assistance was quickly rendered Miss Whiteley, but on her arrival at Sydney Hospital life was pronounced extinct.

Miss Whiteley, who was a native of Forbes, New South Wales, carried on business at Bunnerong-road, South Kensington, as a costumier. The accident caused a block in the tram traffic for almost half an hour.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN POLITICS.

PERTH, Monday.

The Premier (Mr. F. Wilson) tendered the resignation of his Ministry to the Governor after a Cabinet meeting to-day, and recommended his Excellency the Governor to send for Mr. Lefroy, Minister for Lands, who was recently elected leader of the Nationalist party. Mr. Lefroy undertook to form a Ministry, and asked for time to select the members of it. A meeting of the Nationalist party, which recently gave a majority vote in favour of elective Ministries, will be held on Friday.

CROWN LAND SALE.

Yesterday afternoon at La Perouse—a historic spot—Mr. H. Dudley conducted a successful sale of Crown lands. Every block was sold, the total amount realised being £10,510 2s 9d. In some cases the amount realised was 100 per cent. over the upset price. Prices ranged from £2 7s 6d to £12 per foot.

WHARF-LUMPERS' DEMANDS.

FREMANTLE, Monday.

Owing to another case of unreasonable and unpatriotic action on the part of the Fremantle lumpers, serious delay was experienced by two vessels at Fremantle. In order that there might be no unnecessary delay, it was proposed to start loading operations at midnight on Sunday, and continue till the finish. All the men at the picking-up places refused to accept an engagement to work either ship unless paid a higher rate than provided for in the award. Under the award work between midnight on Sunday and 8 a.m. on Monday carries double time, or 3/6 per hour, but the men collectively refused to work during these hours unless paid 4/. The president of the union and a vigilance officer addressed the men, telling them that they should accept employment at award rates, but the men persisted in the attitude they had taken up. This bears out what is so often stated as to the utter powerlessness of the executive of the union to control the actions of their members.

SAFE-BREAKER'S BIG HAUL.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Notwithstanding the recent strengthening of the police by the addition of four new detectives, safe-breakers are still active. To-day it was discovered that two safes had been blown open since Saturday, and that precious stones and jewellery, valued at between £300 and £400, had been stolen from the premises of Mr. H. C. Bittner, manufacturing jeweller, of 108 Queen-street.

COTTAGE FOR SERGEANT'S WIDOW.

A cottage, which through the efforts of the friends of the late Sergeant W. E. H. Macdermott, has been erected on a picturesque site in Young-street, Neutral Bay, was yesterday handed over to the widow in the presence of a large gathering. Sergeant Macdermott served in the Boer War. After having been wounded in France he returned to the front, and was killed on November 14, 1916. His only brother was killed in Gallipoli. The movement for the erection of the cottage first took shape at a meeting convened by Mr. J. S. Stanton in February last. Mr. S. E. Hutton undertook the practical supervision of building operations, and the work was carried out most expeditiously. The value of the cottage is placed at £600, and it has been handed over free of any encumbrance. Eighty men and women contributed voluntary labour in various capacities on four week-ends and one holiday. Fifty gifts were made of materials for fittings, etc., and subscriptions in cash were also received towards defraying the cost of the cottage.

APPEAL AGAINST CONVICTION

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Court of Criminal Appeal had before it to-day an appeal by David Flynn O'Donoghue, an ex-clerk of the Naval Department, against his conviction on three charges of having obtained money by false pretences, on which he was sentenced to six years' imprisonment. The hearing was adjourned until August, bail being allowed in O'Donoghue's bond of £1000, with one security of £1000, and subject to an order that he report himself at the detective office twice daily.

WHEAT-LUMPERS ON STRIKE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The men handling wheat at Sea Lake struck work to-day. A member of the union, a returned soldier, was discharged on Saturday on the ground that he had neglected his work in the interests of the union. On Saturday night the men held a meeting, and on Monday morning demanded the reinstatement of the man, and the recognition of his right to commence and cease work at any hour, on any working day, to attend to union matters. The man was offered a choice of one day off a week, or when it was convenient. The men declined the offer, and went on strike, calling out the hands at Ninda, Nyarrin, and Boigbert stations.

TROUBLE IN A COLLIERY.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Trouble occurred in the Blackheath colliery to-day, when 200 men ceased work because the manager would not allow a motor driver to haul the men along the underground level. The driver in question had a special license to haul coal and material only. The general manager has placed the matter before the owners of the mine.

MADAME STEINHEIL.

LONDON, June 25.

The "Express" states that Madame Steinheil on Tuesday will marry Lord Abinger, who succeeded his brother, the fifth baron, in May. After her trial in 1909 Madame came to England, broken in health. Later she conducted a jam factory at West Norwood, and assumed the name of Madame De Serignac. She is still a beautiful woman.

At Paris, in November, 1909, Madame Steinheil was acquitted by nine votes to three of the charge of murdering her husband and her mother. The crime had attracted great attention, partly from her accusation successively of her man-servant, her cook, and a party of burglars, and partly from the efforts of the prosecutor and the presiding Judge to secure her conviction. These efforts, with her own conduct in court, gained her much sympathy.

LONDON HOTEL ON FIRE.

TRICKETT MEMORIAL REGATTA.

The regatta organised by the N.S.W. Sculling and Rowing League, for the purpose of raising funds for the Trickett Memorial, was ruined by the inclemency of yesterday's weather. The steamer chartered to follow the races promoted here scarcely a score of visitors, many entrants failed to put in an appearance, rain precluded the keeping to schedule time, and the finals of the most interesting events were contested in the dark. For the ladies' championship of New South Wales, in heavy boats, only two contestants came along, and the race was a walk-over for Miss M'Kay, of Balmain, her only opponent being a girl of 16.

The results were as follow:—

Four Pairs Sculls Handicap, 1m.—Parramatta River Rowing Club (C. Towns stroke, W. Fogwell, W. Carter, and T. Glover), 5s, 1; Hunter River Rowing Club (N. Towns stroke, B. Thorogood, W. Latham, and T. Towns), 5s, 2. It was the first time the second crew had been together in a boat of the description used, and the winners had to utilise an emergency man (Glover) in place of Ellis. No time was taken for any of the races.

Gladstone Sweep, 1m.—H. Pickering (George's River), 8s, 1; W. Carter (Parramatta), 1s, 2; T. Glover (Parramatta), 4s, 3. Won by six lengths, two lengths separating second and third.

Ladies' Championship of N.S.W., in heavy boats, 1m.—Miss M'Kay (Balmain), 1; Miss Greenwood (Hunter River), 2. Won in a procession.

Ladies' Double Sculls, 1m.—The Misses R. M'Kay and M. Brasman, 15s, 1; the Misses H. Beaumont and P. Jensen, 0s, 2.

Outrigger, 1m.—M. Kent, 28s, 1; W. Carter, 3s, 2.

COMMONWEALTH AND STATES.

THE LOAN POSITION.

COMPARISON OF EXPENDITURES.

What is the exact meaning of the demand of the Federal Treasurer on the States concerning loan money advanced in the first year of the war and shortly becoming due? Such a question has many possibilities. If the Federal Treasurer insists on his pound of flesh it will mean the closing down of many, if not all, public works in the States on which the demand is made. If New South Wales is included, she will be in a worse position than any of the other States affected, because she was the largest borrower on the occasion. Queensland is not affected. She had large balances in London when at the end of 1914 the other States were clamouring for money. It is well to repeat the exact words used by Sir John Forrest on June 19. He said: "The position now is that on the one hand the Commonwealth has undertaken to raise money for the States, and, on the other hand, there will shortly be large sums due by the States to the Commonwealth. These two equally binding obligations must be set against each other, and this fair and reasonable arrangement has been communicated to the States concerned. Queensland did not receive any portion of the £18,000,000 (the amount advanced between December, 1914, and November, 1915), and New South Wales is not a party to the agreement of November 6, 1915." It is clear from Sir John Forrest's statement that no demand can be made on Queensland, and it seems equally clear that no demand will be made on New South Wales, because she is not a participant in money raised by the Commonwealth in London for the distribution among the States. It seems then that the demand will be made on Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania. How the position stands with these four States is observed from this table:—

State	Advanced by the Commonwealth, Dec., 1914, to Nov., 1915.	London Loan through the Commonwealth, 1917.
Victoria	£2,300,000	£414,000
South Australia	2,000,000	1,385,000
Western Australia	3,190,000	1,400,000
Tasmania	1,000,000	400,000

Out of the first loan New South Wales received £7,400,000, and from the latest loan Queensland is to receive £1,735,000. And this last loan, it is to be remembered, is not for the financial year, but for the calendar year. The position would then seem to be that, as under the first loan the amounts advanced far exceed the amounts to be advanced under the third loan—that for this year—none of the money raised in London for the States for public works will be available for that purpose, but will go to repay the Commonwealth the first loan. But, as against that, there is this to be remembered. The latest loan is for the year ended December next, and the first amount due under the 1914-15 loan is not due till November next, so that really the Federal Treasurer, if he keeps to the pact of January last, will have given to the States concerned all but one month's instalment before he is able to claim that any sum on account of previous loans is due. The amounts lent by the Commonwealth during December, 1914 (excluding New South Wales to avoid confusion) were:—

	Advanced by Commonwealth in Dec., 1914.
Victoria	£675,000
South Australia	316,000
Western Australia	258,333
Tasmania	83,333

If we compare this table with the third column of the previous table we find that, with the exception of Victoria, there is due to the States from the Commonwealth more than there is due to the Commonwealth by the States in 1917. The Federal Treasurer has stated that there has already been advanced to the States this year £1,560,000. Thus it seems clear that South Australia should receive this year £1,069,000, Western Australia £1,207,000, and Tasmania £316,000 out of loan moneys raised by the Commonwealth in London. But, in addition, all the States in the compact were allowed to raise in Australia a sum not exceeding £4,333,000. Allowing then that Queensland be given the whole sum she contracted for, excluding New South Wales, the States should have available if they raise the full amount locally they are permitted to do £8,659,000, in place of an anticipated £9,722,000. The States, it may be said with perfect safety, never anticipated that they would be called upon by the Commonwealth while the war lasted to pay up the money advanced. They would look forward to renewing the loan, perhaps at the higher rate of interest. If the States had anticipated that any money which they should receive from London through the Commonwealth would be garnisheed to pay money owing to the Commonwealth, New South Wales would not have been the only State which stood out of the arrangement.

The action of the Federal Treasurer invites a comparison between loan expenditure in Australia before the war and at the present time. That loan expenditure has been during the last six years, at any rate, the mainstay of the worker. He is vitally interested in the question whether it has increased or diminished. That that expenditure has increased greatly during the war will be seen from the appended table:—

	Loan expenditure. 1913-14 Actual.	1916-17. Estimated.
Commonwealth	£2,154,564	£51,207,434
States	20,737,984	18,141,000
Total	£22,892,548	£69,348,434

It is not suggested that all this is spent in Australia, but if we take it that one-third of the war expenditure is now being made in Australia and half the State loans, we find that even then there will have been spent here in the year now closing at least twenty-three millions sterling, or more than the total loan money spent both in Australia and for material abroad during 1913-14. There has been some shifting of the distribution of the work paid for by these moneys. The war work has benefited quite a different set of trades to that benefited by ordinary public works. War has provided more work for the manufacturing workers. Public works provide employment for the constructive workers, but this much is plain, that the amount of work available from public moneys is considerably greater in the present year than in the immediate pre-war year, and the number of workers available for employment is fewer.

INCOME TAXES.

ASSESSMENT ON ACTIVE SERVICE.

"Soldier" writes:—

Sir,—I am attorney for a man on active service, who earned no property income, and therefore no return was lodged. I am now asked to return any personal exertion income made between July 1, 1915, and the date of enlistment (November, 1915).

Is it not a fact that the Act does not apply to the men on active service (as regards personal exertion income) during the duration of the war?

The matter is one of interest to many besides myself, and your reply will be appreciated.

Section 13 of the Federal Income Tax Assessment Act reads: "This Act shall not apply to any person who is on active service during the present war with the military or naval forces of the Commonwealth, or any part of the King's Dominions, or an ally of Great Britain, so far as regards income derived from personal exertion and earned prior to the commencement of this Act or during the present state of the war." To the ordinary mind this section would seem to exempt the soldier from paying any Federal income tax on income from personal exertion earned before the war or during the present state of war. The departmental mind says otherwise. In its view exemption commences only from the day of enlistment.

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES.

A campaign to obtain the widest support for the Commonwealth War Savings Certificates will be opened by a public meeting in the Town Hall to-morrow night, when addresses will be delivered by Mr. W. M. Hughes, the Prime Minister, and Mr. G. W. Fuller, the Acting Premier of New South Wales.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT.

"Judicial:" You are not bound to insure, but you would consult your own interests by doing so. "J.H.:" Yes; in case of accident you would be liable. "Enquirer" (Wingham): No.

MISCELLANEOUS QUERIES.

"Doubtful:" A duty stamp of 2d must be placed on every receipt for £2 and over. "H.N.W." Duplicate receipts must be stamped. "J.H.F.:" Probate of a soldier's will is not exempt from stamp duty.

COMMERCIAL.

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER MARKETS.

The Sydney butter market has become steadier and buyers are now only taking normal requirements. The shortage in fresh made is being made up by withdrawals from the winter pool stocks. Prescott, Ltd., is of the opinion that during the coming week there will be a shortage on account of the delay in the arrival of the steamer from Byron Bay, which has been caused by the heavy weather.

Numerous complaints are heard in Melbourne regarding the quality of the butter supply ex the Federal pool. There is general dissatisfaction with regard to the present arrangements placing restrictions on interstate trade, and, according to Prescott, Ltd., it is an open question whether the market would alter if all price-fixing regulations were removed. Values are lower in London, and the present price (158/8) is equivalent to the value for export. Arrivals for the week ended June 15 totalled 4863 boxes of butter, and 30 tons of cream. Reports from Adelaide indicate that that market is now self-supporting.

Last week's production in Queensland is estimated at 7200 boxes. The market is unaltered. A few sales of choicest fresh have been made to Sydney.

BREADSTUFFS.

WHEAT LOADINGS AND STACKINGS.

During the week ended June 16 the quantity of wheat despatched from the country stations was 223,121 bags, compared with 182,130 bags last week and 204,413 bags the corresponding week of last year.

From the opening of the present season on December 1, 1916, to June 16, 1917, there was despatched from country stations a total of 8,865,389 bags, compared with 7,469,601 during the corresponding period of last year.

WHEAT DIVIDEND.

The Victorian Wheat Commission states that transfer books for wheat scrip season 1915-16 will be closed from July 2 to 9, inclusive, for the payment of the fourth dividend of 6d per bushel net, raising the total distribution to 4/6, less rail freight and agency charge. Transfer books for 1916-17 season's scrip will be closed from August 1 to 8 inclusive, to enable the payment of the second dividend of 6d per bushel, making the total distribution 3/ net.

Mr. Edward Harris, secretary of the New South Wales Wheat Board, when spoken to stated that he could not make any announcement until to-day.

EXPORT TRADE.

BETTER PACKING OF MEAT.

The conference of meat exporters, which, under the presidency of Mr. E. Owen Cox, is being held to consider the question of cutting and packing meat for export, with a view to more economical disposition of refrigerated space, received reports of the various committees. The committee's report in regard to the cutting of mutton and lamb was unanimously adopted as follows:—

That the cutting of mutton and lamb be compulsory. The haunch to be cut off immediately below the chump. The haunch not to be removed until after the carcase is thoroughly set; then the haunch is to be packed inside the trunks shank downwards, being careful to leave no protuberances from the trunk end. The dressing and trimming heretofore observed in the various works to be continued. The saving in space is estimated at 25 per cent. to 30 per cent. To defray extra cost 1/32nd per lb be added to present price. The Commonwealth Inspection Department is to be invited to prepare a diagram, with instructions printed at the foot thereof, and a plentiful supply of these circulated for the guidance of meat works.

In regard to beef, the committee's report was also unanimously adopted. In this connection it has been decided that a test shall be made at some Queensland meat works of shipping beef with the shank cut off at the stifle joint in comparison with beef without the shank cut off to determine the extra labour, cost, and shrinkage, and the saving in storage space and deadweight.

A committee appointed to deal with frozen sundries reported that a saving in stowage space of 50 per cent. can be made in frozen sundries by freezing all beef sundries and boneless meat after chilling in a uniform-sized mould, and bagging them after freezing, but this method of packing would need to be subject to the Commonwealth Inspection being final, and accepted by the civil home inspection authorities. In this connection it was arranged that a cable should be sent to the British authorities on the subject.

SHEEP.

MARKET EASIER.

The supply of sheep yesterday was a light one. Only 3886 were in the pens. They were of good quality, and, considering the rough, wet weather in which they were marketed, they were in fairly good condition. They came from 41 owners. The attendance of buyers, owing to the holiday and the wet weather, was not as large as usual. There was an apparent understanding amongst some of those operating, which at times was most pronounced, with a result that the sheep in some cases did not bring as high a price as under normal conditions. The market opened a shade lower than on Thursday, but as sales progressed it improved somewhat, and, although irregular all through, was generally not quite on a par with last day's rates. A small draft of 67 cross wethers, from E. W. Matthews, of Wyangee, sold to 45/10, and averaged 44/. Another line of 171 cross wethers, from J. C. Ryrie, of Cooma, made to 42/7, and averaged 33/3. Mr. E. H. Litchfield, of Cooma, forwarded [illegible] five cross ewes and two cross wethers, which were sold at 46/1 each. A few merino wethers from W. M. Maxwell, of Wee Waa, made to 42/9. Cross wethers from W. Matthews, of Wyangee, sold to 42/8.

LAMBS.

There was a small supply of lambs and the competition was good. Prices were about on a par with last day's rates. A line of 53 cross lambs from H. Crossley, of Bangaroo, made to 37/4, and averaged 36/2. A small draft of cross lambs from J. J. Leahy, of Caragabal, realised to 35/1. A pen of 31 cross lambs, from E. H. Litchfield, of Cooma, sold at 32/9 each; while cross lambs from W. M. Maxwell, of Wee Waa, realised to 32/1.

CATTLE.

A DEARER MARKET.

There was a total yarding of 1111 head of cattle. They came from 45 owners, and were a good all-round lot, comprising mostly useful trade sorts to prime heavy-weight bullocks and cows. The attendance of buyers was quite up to the average, and embraced all sections of the trade. The market opened dearer, and generally the values were from 20/ to 30/ higher than on Thursday. In some cases, however, the advance was not so pronounced. This was due to the market being, in some instances, irregular. There was a very fine draft of 70 bullocks from Dangar Bros., of Warialda, which made to £27/2/, and averaged £21/2/5; while another line of 54 bullocks from J. F. White, also of Warialda, realised to £20/8/, and averaged £19/3/. Bangheet station forwarded, ex Gravesend, 26 bullocks, which made to £22/2/, and averaged £20/7/6; while from Welbon station, ex Moppin, there was a truck of 7 bullocks and steers, which realised to £24/4/, and averaged £20/11/6. THE PREVENTION OF VENEREAL DISEASE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Sir T. Anderson Stuart and Professor Welch approved of, and recommend, a system of combating venereal disease by the use of so-called preventive methods. Their position is this—men will run the risk of infection. It is the duty, therefore, of the hygienist to show them how this risk can be avoided. The two professors have in view at present the men under military training, but they would probably, in order to be consistent, extend this system to all others. This means, therefore, that lads of, say 16, or even younger, should be carefully schooled in the minutiae of this method. Again, to carry their consistency to its logical conclusion, girls and young women are equally entitled to claim the benefits arising out of an intimate knowledge of these preventive methods. If the fear of physical consequences is to be removed from promiscuity then it must be removed all round.

But even as the immunity which used to be guaranteed by C. D. Acts, registration, etc, has been proved to be quite illusory, so I have grave doubts if Sir T. Anderson Stuart's panacea will not share the same fate. The figures which he gave prove nothing. What would be of some value would be the number of men at Milson Island compared with those in the pre-preventive period, all other factors, such as the number of troops in camp, the influence of 6 o'clock closing, etc, being taken into consideration. In an article published in a medical journal early this year, an Australian doctor gave an account of his experiences in Egypt. He took notes of about 300 cases of venereal disease under his care, and of these only 7 per cent had not used some form or other of preventive treatment.

In plain words the issue before us is this. We are asked to tell the young man,—"You should control your passions, but if you won't, we will see that you don't suffer from your want of control." Now this may be excellent from the hygienic standpoint, but it simply means the cynical throwing of all sexual ethics overboard. Before we come to this I would suggest that some other methods be tried, as for instance:—

(1) Instruction and warning of the plainest kind to lads on the dangers of venereal disease.

(2) Further restrictions on the drink traffic, since all medical authorities agree that alcohol and venereal disease go hand in hand.

(3) To protect innocent women and unborn children, upon which point so much stress is laid, a certificate of freedom from venereal disease infectivity to be furnished by men before marriage is permitted.

(4) Last, but not least, the cultivation of a public opinion among lads and young men that it is a cowardly and despicable thing to take advantage of the ignorance or weakness of women, and to degrade or injure them in any way, and that true manliness lies in learning—as Huxley said, "to call one's passions to heel."

I am convinced that these are the lines of advance, not by attempting to make vice [illegible] RICHARD ARTHUR.

MINING.

HAMPDEN-CLONCURRY MEETING.

The half-yearly meeting of shareholders of Hampden-Cloncurry Copper Mines, Limited, was held in Melbourne yesterday. The chairman of directors, Mr. J. L. Wharton, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, said that the profit on the working account for the half-year was £64,539, which was reduced by profit and loss charges to £58,545. The surplus of liquid assets, he added, was £124,497, exclusive of shares in other companies amounting to £13,751. Since the close of the half-year, owing to steady running conditions and the higher price obtained for the product, the profit on working account for the three months ended May 31 was approximately £80,000, which was practically in line with any of the company's best previous periods. The tonnage smelted from the various mines in the half-year was 46,443 tons, inclusive of Customs ore and matte, as compared with 57,881 tons for the previous period. The yield from the company's ore and purchased ore was 3102 tons of fine copper, 1028oz of gold, and 23,418oz of silver, as compared with 3673 tons of copper, 1276oz of gold, and 28,000oz of silver for the previous period. Negotiations with the Queensland Government for the construction of a branch railway to serve the Trekelano mine had progressed to the agreement stage, but some slight final details had yet to be concluded. The capital outlay of the company for the railway would be from £20,000 to £25,000, and this would be refunded on a tonnage basis, the company only paying 50 per cent. of the schedule freight rate on ores until it had been reimbursed for the amount spent by it.

The report and balance-sheet were unanimously adopted.—Melbourne correspondent.

MOUNT LYELL M. AND R. COMPANY.

The directors of the Mount Lyell Mining and Railway Company have decided to issue their reports and statement of accounts only annually in future. An interim dividend will in future be declared in June, and the final dividend in December, when the figures for the complete year have been ascertained. The interim dividend out of profits for the year ended September 30 has been fixed at 1/3 per share, absorbs £80,574, and is payable on July 30. During the half-year 15,464 tons of ore were mined, as compared with 166,497 for the previous period, the reduction being due to the shortage of labour. The material smelted at the reduction works during the half-year totalled 131,679 tons, which was made up of 83,604 tons from the Mount Lyell mine, 46,060 from the North Mount Lyell mine, 1952 tons of concentrates, and 63 tons of purchased ore. The blister copper produced amounted to 3036 tons, containing 3002 tons of copper, 149,829oz of silver, and 3952oz of gold. Notwithstanding a reduction of 20,157 tons in the amount of material smelted, the output of copper showed a reduction of only 137 tons. The effect of the reduced tonnage treated would have been more marked but for the higher assay value of the ore won from the North Mount Lyell mine. The flotation plant treated 6990 tons of ore, of which 5532 tons came from the Lyell Comstock mine and 1458 tons from the North Mount Lyell mine. The concentrates produced amounted to 2121 tons, which assayed 8.97 per cent. copper. The recoveries were 89.11 per cent. of the copper, 74.26 per cent. of the silver, and 67.34 per cent. of the gold contents. The new converter plant is nearing completion. So as to develop the full resources of the present power station, thus making available a continuous supply of 8000 horse power, it has been decided to extend the Lake Margaret scheme for hydro-electric power. The total expenditure incurred by the additions is about £70,000. On behalf of the Tasmanian Government Hydro-electric Department, surveys have been made in connection with a scheme for utilising the waters of the King River for generating electrical energy. A considerable amount of work has been carried out in this connection, and the installation of a 30,000-horse power plant appeared to be economically feasible.

AMALGAMATED ZINC OUTPUT.

The return of Amalgamated Zinc (De Bavays), Ltd., for the four weeks ended June 2 stated that 23,340 tons of tailings were treated for a production of 1115 tons of zinc concentrates, assaying zinc 48.1 per cent., silver 9.5oz, and lead 7.0 per cent., and 185 tons of lead concentrates, assaying lead 54.5 per cent., silver 54.4oz, and zinc 11.6 per cent. The estimated income on the working account from all sources was £20,181 (spelter being reckoned at £32 per ton). The total working expenditure, inclusive of cost of the North B.H. tailings treated and provision for royalty, absorbed £14,633. The estimated profit of the working account, after providing for royalty and allowing for the B.H. South Company's proportion of profit, amounted to £3542.

LARGE MOLYBDENITE DEAL.

Mr. F. G. Brown, who recently visited England, in giving particulars of his visit, stated that he went to Great Britain with options of big producing wolfram and molybdenite mines, including the Irvinebank Company's reduction works at Wolfram, North Queensland. Wolfram and molybdenite were urgently needed by the Allies for munition purposes, and North Queensland had a large quantity of metal in reserve. Mr. Brown got into touch with the Thermo Electric Ore Reduction Corporation, which had its registered offices in London, and works at Luton, England, and the company decided to acquire the properties. The company proposed to instal up-to-date machinery for the purpose of working the mines to their maximum capacity. The Thermo Company was also negotiating for the purchase of the Mount Carbine wolfram mines, situated near Cairns. If the company acquired these mines, it intended to instal up-to-date machinery of sufficient capacity to produce up to 500 tons of wolfram per annum. The company was applying to the Commonwealth Government for permission to ship the produce of the mine direct to London instead of through the Commonwealth Government's agent at Sydney. If permission was granted to this request, the Imperial Government would receive metals much earlier than at present. Mr. Brown said that the price of molybdenite delivered in London was fixed at £625 per ton. Germany, crushed as she was, paid to Norway, where molybdenite was produced, £2000 per ton last year. America bought molybdenite at about £1000 per ton, and paid from £600 to £1000 per ton for wolfram, although the price of the latter had receded to about £200 per ton. The Thermo Company proposed spending £150,000 on the properties acquired at Wolfram camps, and, if the place warranted it, the company would further increase the productive powers of the mines. The company recognised the necessity of increased production of these two metals, and it was erecting works at Luton capable of dealing with the world's output if it could get it, and to make sure that Germany would not again attain to the position she once occupied in regard to these metals, the company had spent £250,000 in buying up the large producing mines of the world.—Brisbane Correspondent.

TRONG TIN.

The annual report and balance-sheet of Trong Tin, No Liability, discloses a profit of £22,204 for the year's operations. The directors have written £6225 off preliminary expenses and plant, thus reducing the gross profit to £15,979. As the dredge had been kept in repair, nothing was written off plant. The company dredged 863,893 cubic yards of drift for 344½ tons tin oxide, and for the first three months of the current half-year have been dealing with ground averaging a little over 0.8lb tin oxide per cubic yard. The company had paid two dividends of 1/ per share, and a third of the same amount on June 15. Operations for the term showed that an average of 0.977lb tin oxide was obtained, and that the loss was 0.14lb. The net value of 344,116 tons of tin oxide sold was £36,333, or an average price of £105 per ton. The net value of the ground was 10.11d per cubic yard, and the cost, including Melbourne expenditure, 3.99d, the net profit per cubic yard being 6.12d per cubic yard.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure which on Saturday was centred between Alice Springs and the Western Australian goldfields has surged southward, and at 9 o'clock this morning was centrally situated to the south of Tasmania. This southerly surge accounts for the rain which has been registered along the southern and central coast.

The Antarctic disturbance which was in evidence on Sunday to the south-west of the Leeuwin has also developed a southern movement, and is now centred to the south-west of Albany.

Further showers may be expected along the coast, but fine weather inland, with southerly winds.

The cyclone disturbance over the North Tasman Sea has filled up and moved easterly. Ocean Forecast.—Generally smooth to moderate.

Poisoned Finger!

ZAM-BUK IS INVALUABLE FOR ALL WOUNDS & SKIN INJURIES

A CUT or Scratch is the gateway through which dangerous disease germs enter the body. Germs are living creatures that dwell among dirt particles everywhere, and even the dust of the air is full of them—in fact, dirt is only another name for germs.

When a dirty knife, a rusty needle, a splinter, or a thorn scratches the finger, the latter is inoculated with germs. Directly these germs are introduced through the breach in the skin, a battle royal ensues between them and certain living creatures dwelling in our blood.

Usually the invading germs are too strong for Nature's defences, and in a few hours the finger will become hot and throbbing. It will be painful to the touch, and swell all round the injury. A little later the wound may exhibit a whitish appearance in the middle of the swelling, and we have what is known as the festering or poisoned finger. The inflammation set up by the poison may spread until the whole hand and arm are rendered useless.

The only way to avoid such serious results is to cleanse the wound, however slight, and then apply Zam-Buk, which is a powerful antiseptic and germ killer. When Zam-Buk is applied to the broken skin it is naturally absorbed into the tissue, whence it ejects the germs that are spreading disease and inflammation. The flesh is thus soothed and purified, the wound made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore with new, healthy skin, in a quick, painless and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with mere ointments, with which it has nothing in common. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic soothing and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any ordinary preparation. It pays to keep a pot of Zam-Buk always handy.

Poisoned Hand Healed.

Mr. F. J. Barnett, of Perry-street, St. Peters, Sydney, says:—"I am in the employ of the Australian Gas Co., as gasmain layer, and while at work had the misfortune to injure my hand. I treated the wound rather carelessly, thinking it would be all right, but it became worse and began to show signs of blood-poisoning. I applied several ointments, but they did me no good. My hand grew worse, and I suffered such agony that I was forced to give up work. Zam-Buk was recommended to me, and to my delight the wound immediately began to heal, and after only three weeks' treatment with Zam-Buk I was able to return to my work absolutely cured."

'A' GALLANT ANZAC

PRAISES

DR. SHELDON'S NEW DISCOVERY.

Private Roy Clark, No. 880, D Company, 2nd Battalion, A.I.F., enlisted when first the A.I.F. was formed, and left Sydney with the above Battalion on 18th October, 1914. He was in the famous landing in Gallipoli, and went through the campaign until wounded, which resulted in the loss of his right arm, and caused him to be returned to Australia. This gallant hero writes:—

"I think every soldier should take a bottle of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery with him to the Front, for it saved me from the torture of a sore throat and colds all through my experience, for I made it a habit of taking a dose of the Mixture two or three times a week. This strengthened my throat and lungs, and prevented coughs and colds, from which most of my comrades suffered severely, both during our stay in Egypt and on the Peninsula.

"All the boys speak most highly of it, and it gives me much pleasure to add my testimony to that of my many pals who have likewise found New Discovery so beneficial.—Yours truly,

(Sgd.) "ROY CLARK."

NEW DISCOVERY.

A NECESSITY IN THE TRENCHES.

Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery is the most famous modern remedy for Coughs and Colds. A dose taken at the first sign of a cold will ward off danger and prevent further trouble. New Discovery is as good for the folk at home as for our Soldiers at the Front. Buy a bottle to-day, and reap the benefit of a winter free from Coughs and Colds. 1/6 and 3/.

REINFORCE YOUR HEALTH

Most people realise that life is an arduous campaign in the prosecution of which their "fighting force" frequently suffers serious depletion. "Reinforcements" become necessary to replace the wastage of energy and to ensure the "war" being waged with success. The first step to take to reinforce the health is to clear the system of the debris with which it is clogged owing to the sluggish action of one or more of the organs governing the functions of digestion and elimination. This will be most easily and satisfactorily accomplished

BY TAKING

one or two doses of Beecham's Pills, which act as a gentle, yet efficient aperient. It usually happens that no other medicine will be required, for Beecham's Pills, in addition to possessing valuable aperient properties, are also an excellent tonic medicine, which will be found to thoroughly "reinforce" the general health. Remember that "Staying Power" wins—that the battle in these days is more than ever to the strong, and remember, too, that nothing will contribute to your enjoying your full plenitude of vigour and vitality like
